EGAN'S THANKSGIVING.

Valparaiso, Nov. 27.—The United States steamer Yorktown arrived in the harbor last night.

Minister Egan and other Americans were entertained yesterday aboard the Baltimore in honor of Thanksgiving day. Boat races were included in the entertainment. Minister Egan was loudly cheered by the crew of the Baltimore.

There's danger in a cough—more than ever when your blood is "bad." It makes things easy for Consumption. But there's a cure for it in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. A positive cure—not only for Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Bronchitis, Asthma and all lingering Coughs, but for Consumption itself in all its earlier stages. It's reasonable. All these diseases depend on tainted blood. Consumption is simply Lung-scrofula. And for every form of scrofula and blood-taint, the "Discovery" is a certain remedy. It's so certain, that its makers guarantee it to benefit or cure, in every case, or the money is refunded. With a medicine that is certain, this can be done.

There's a cure for Catarrh, too, no matter what you've been led to believe. If there isn't in your case, you'll get $500 cash. It's a bona fide offer that's made by the proprietors of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

They are willing to take the risk—you ought to be glad to take the medicine.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Germany is Again Stirred by Rumors

That Von Caprivi Will Resign the Chancellorship.

Emperor William on His High Horse Again.

Turkey and France Flirting with Each Other.

The Former Has Made Important Concessions to the Latter Which Would Prove Troublesome in the Event of Russia Declaring War on the Other Countries.

Berlin, Nov. 27.—This city is treated to another sensation to-day.

Yesterday it was the rumor that Chancellor Von Caprivi intended to resign (a rumor, it should be added, which has not been officially denied up to the present), and this morning the good people of Berlin are startled by the announcement, made by the Kreuz Zeitung (conservative), an influential daily paper, that, by a secret agreement with France, Turkey has ceded Cape Sheik Shaib, in the Persian gulf, to France.

Cape Sheik Shaib is on the island of Bushir, or Bushoab, eleven miles from the north coast of Persia, and might be strongly fortified and otherwise made use of as a harbor for a French fleet.

Between the main land and the island of Sheik Shaib, or Bushoab, is said to be water affording good anchorage for the largest war vessels. This would give France a depot and a possible landing place for troops not far north of the British possessions in India, and might under certain circumstances, enable France to co-operate with Russia should the latter country's troops invade Persian territory and possibly continue an onward march towards India itself.

Turkey, according to the Kreuz Zeitung, is said to have taken this step owing to the uneasiness felt by the sultan and his advisers at the action of England in continuing the occupation of Egypt in spite of the protests of France and Turkey, indirectly against such a course.

It is concluded that in fortifying Sheik Shaib, France threatens Great Britain's hold on the Red Sea, made practically a British lake by the fact that England holds Aden (the Gibaraltar of the east), as the entrance of the straits of Babelmandeb leading into the Red Sea.

This rumor regarding Sheik Shaib is not exactly new so far as France's desire to obtain possession of that island, but if the Kreuz Zeitung is to be believed, the matter is now of the greatest importance.

Since the Kreuz Zeitung's news was made public there has been a constant exchange of telegrams between the German foreign office and some of its representatives abroad, but all information upon the Sheik Shaib matter is refused by the official in charge.

Chancellor Von Caprivi's rumored intention to resign is now said to be due to the emperor's severe references to the fact that he, the chancellor, should have been able to prevent M. De Giers from "riding rough-shod over Europe and doing as he pleased with kings and ministers."

It is now known beyond doubt that differences of a serious nature have existed between the emperor and the chancellor for some time past, and that these differences of opinion have required considerable smoothing over on both sides, and nobody, as matters now stand, would be astonished to hear that it was an actual fact that the chancellor insists upon retiring from office.

The emperor, however, though prone to take offense easily and to speak thoughtlessly, is also given to repenting as rapidly of his hasty actions and to be ready to make all amends in his power.

This, it is now understood, is about the state of affairs existing between the emperor and the chancellor.

HAD A CLOSE CALL.

Fire in a Factory Where 300 Girls Were Employed.

New York, Nov. 27.—Goodwin's cigarette factory at Grand and Cherry streets was damaged to the extent of $40,000 by fire this morning. The 300 girls in the factory became panic stricken and were with difficulty restrained from jumping out of windows. As it was some of them leaped from the windows of the first story after rushing down the stairs and finding egress from the building slow on account of the crowding of the doors, but no one was hurt.

KILLED BY A LANDSLIDE.

The Winter Casualties Have Commenced.

Two Men Lost Their Lives Near Canyon on the Northern Pacific Road.

Tacoma, Wash., Nov. 27.—Two men, instead of twelve or fifteen, as previously reported, were killed by the landslide on the Northern Pacific railroad near Canyon Wednesday night.

Five men were injured and two men who were carried into the river have not been accounted for. The dead are: Andrew Anderson, 32; Charles Johnson, 26. Both unmarried.

The injured are: John Miller, back injured; John A. Kelund, left arm badly broken; Hans Graham, wrist sprained; Wm. English, contusion of knee, ankle, hip and abdomen, probably injured internally. None of the injured are married.

The missing are Christian Erickson and J. Powell.

Balfour Makes a Plain Statement About Ireland.

London, Nov. 27.—During the course, yesterday, of his speech at Glasgow upon the occasion of his installation as rector of the University of Glasgow, to which position he was recently elected, the Right Hon. A. J. Balfour, first lord of the treasury, conservative leader in the house of commons and late chief secretary for Ireland, claimed that he had restored order in Ireland and that he had improved the position of the tenantry. Mr. Balfour also said that he believed that Ireland would never have home rule. This last utterance has caused much comment in many circles and will have a decided effect upon the approaching general elections.

ALL IS PEACE TO-DAY.

Peixotte is Master of the Situation.

Papers Are Demanding the Impeachment of Fonseca and All of His Ministers.

Valparaiso, Nov. 27.—Advices received here from Rio de Janeiro state that Fonseca, besides abdicating the dictatorship, has renounced his title of commander-in-chief and retired to private life.

The papers are, however, demanding the impeachment of Fonseca, and also of his ministers, on the ground that they are responsible for the moneys spent during the short-lived dictatorship.

The governors of all the states have proclaimed in favor of the new president, Peixotto.

It is rumored that the federal capital will be removed from Rio de Janeiro to Niotheroy.

NATIONAL COMMANDERS.

Boston, Nov. 27.—The national commanders of the U. S. regular army and navy veterans, with headquarters at Philadelphia, visited Gen. R. S. MacKenzie Garrison, of this city, yesterday. A joint meeting was held at which the present officers were re-elected for the ensuing year. A union of the various regular army and navy organizations was urged, but no action was taken in the matter.

The friend whose name is unknown escaped by jumping from the buggy.

CLEARED OF ANY CRIME.

An Unpopular Verdict in the Plymouth Case.

Officers Who Wrecked the Boats and Endangered the Lives of the Fishermen Were Not at Fault.

London, Nov. 27.—The verdict of the naval court of inquiry into the disaster which occurred off Plymouth on the 20th of October, when two fishing boats were sunk and a man drowned, by shots from her majesty's gunboat "Plucky," during target practice, is published to-day by the admiralty office.

The court acquitted Lieut. Fremantle, who was in charge of the "Plucky" at the time of the accident, of any negligence in the sinking of the boats, and stated that the disaster was due to an error in estimating the distance owing to the peculiar condition of the atmosphere.

The finding of the court is severely criticised by the fishermen and their friends, who claim that the whole proceedings of the court plainly indicated that Lieut. Fremantle was to be exonerated from any blame in the matter.

TO RIVAL JULES VERNE.

Sub-Marine Torpedo Boat to be Launched

From the Detroit Boat Works To-Morrow.

Interesting Description of the Craft That is to Plow Under the Waters with Her Human Cargo.

Detroit, Nov. 27.—The submarine boat about which so much has been written, will be launched at the yard of the Detroit boat works to-morrow afternoon. Detroit will open wide her eyes and the American eagle will scream and flap his wings with delight, for all indications point to a successful trial of the submarine monster.

This boat was built by the Detroit boat works from designs of Fred A. Baltin, naval architect, and will be ready for trial immediately upon launching. Geo. C. Baker, of Chicago, is her owner, he wishing to use her for the purpose of testing an invention of his which, if proven practicable, will have considerable influence on the future of submarine navigation.

This invention, which is patented in this country, as well as abroad, consists in reversible propellers, working on each side of the boat amidships. Their duty is to propel as well as regulate the desired immersion. When the boat is ready for sea very little of the hull will be visible, and for this reason an observing tower is provided at the highest point, surmounting to a couple of feet. The power necessary to submerge the remaining portion of the hull, amounting to about ten cubic feet, will be very small.

As it is possible to revolve the propeller-shaft to any desired angle, it is evident that the wheels will have a tendency to draw the boat downwards at an oblique angle with the level of the water, but as the remaining buoyancy acts perpendicularly upwards the direction of the boat will be in the line of the resolvent of these two forces.

The more acute the angle of the shaft the deeper the boat will sink. If turned at an angle of 90 degrees there will be no more forward motion, but instead a vertical downward motion. As the buoyancy changes slightly with the depth under water there will be a certain point where it will be possible to maintain a direction parallel with the level of the water at any desired depth.

Experiments made by Mr. Baker on models and a small boat, were so satisfactory to himself that he determined to try his invention on a larger scale. About a year ago he communicated his ideas to Mr. Baltin, and after some correspondence and interviews he gave this gentleman the contract for building the present boat, which, for the sake of economy, was made of wood instead of steel as originally contemplated.

The boat is 40 feet long, 9 feet wide and 14 feet deep. The hull is constructed of solid oak frames molded six inches and bolted together fore and aft without spaces. These frames are covered with a skin of prepared canvas, over which a one-inch planking is fastened, well calked, making the thickness of the shell seven inches all through. The longitudinal sections are parabolic, while all cross-sections are true ellipses. On the inside the hull is well braced by beams, shelves and stringers, and it is calculated that it will stand safely an external pressure of forty pounds, equivalent to a submersion of eighty-six feet.

The question of power was the most important one to solve, and awaiting the outcome of different speculations in this direction, the boat remained incomplete for nearly six months. Storage batteries offered themselves most prominently, and but for one reason they would have been adopted, as they required no air and no fuel. The one reason is that 400 cells, weighing nearly fifteen tons, could furnish the necessary power for only ten hours before they would have to be recharged.

After considering every known power, steam was accepted as the most simple, reliable and attainable. The machinery in the boat consists of a sixty horse-power Roberts' safety pipe boiler and a 7x8 inches Willard engine, an exhaust condenser, a Worthington duplex pressure pump and a 10x16x12 inches Hughes blowing engine, and also a hand force pump.

The boiler had to be built up inside the boat. The outside casing is made of one-quarter inch steel boiler plate, riveted and calked, and as the fire door and ash pit covers can be screwed down perfectly air-tight no gas can escape inside the boat. The smokestack is connected with an outside castiron conduit, which is provided with a check controlled from the inside.

The blowing engine is capable of changing the air in the boat in two minutes, drawing it through a four-inch inlet pipe, which can be extended eight feet above the hull at one end of the boat and discharging it at the other. If submersion is desired the discharge is closed and air can be stored in the hull at a pressure of about fifteen pounds, sufficient in quantity to last three men for several hours.

Ingress to the boat is obtained through the observing tower, which is provided with a tight-fitting cover that can be opened or shut from the inside. The body of the tower has around the sides five side-lights, or peep-holes, and the cover is closed by one of heavy glass.

The lateral direction of the boat is controlled by a balanced rudder under the stern, which is worked by a steering wheel located at the tower.

Besides the machinery about 25 tons of iron and five tons of water is needed to ballast the boat to the required draft; the water can be pumped out by either steam or hand in case of an emergency. The exhaust from the different engines is condensed and expelled at the side of the hull. The interior is lighted by incandescent lights, electricity being furnished by eight 300 ampere Woodward cells.

An anchor will be carried on top of the hull and two tow-posts are provided for fastening lines. An iron railing secures against slipping from the top.

A preliminary trial will be made at the boat works slip, where a 15-foot deep channel has been dredged for the purpose, and after all the machinery has been found to work satisfactorily a run under the Detroit River will be made. Prospective applicants for such a trip will remember that air is a valuable ingredient and there will be none to spare except for those necessary to run the boat.

The first attempt at sub-marine boat construction of which there is any record was made by a Dutchman named Drebbell in the seventeenth century. No details are given as to what became of Mr. Drebbell or his boat.

In 1774 an Englishman named Day constructed such a craft. He essayed an attempt in Plymouth Harbor, but forgot to come up.

About the same time a Yankee named David Bushnell tried his hand at the same thing. With what success? Now who ever knew a Yankee to fail in anything requiring the exercise of inventive genius? Of course he was successful. Foot power pumped the water in and out and also propelled the boat. She carried 200 pounds of detachable ballast. She was built as a gunpowder torpedo boat, and was entirely successful.

In 1800 Robert Fulton built a sub-marine torpedo boat for Napoleon. She was given a preliminary trial in Havre harbor, going down twenty-five feet, staying there one hour and coming to the surface again. Compressed air propelled her horizontal and parallel screws. She blew up a hulk and was accepted.

In 1849 a German named Bauer built one at Kiel of cast-iron. In 1851 she sunk in experiment.

In 1863 a confederate submarine torpedo boat came out commanded by Glassell. She was fifty feet long and nine feet beam, of a circular form. She failed in an attempt to blow up the New Ironsides, but succeeded on the Housatonic in 1864. The hole made in the Housatonic was so large that the suction drew the torpedo craft in with her crew of five men, and there they remained until the close of the war.

About the same time a wooden craft, the Stromboli, was built at Fairhaven, England. She was seventy-five feet long, twenty feet wide and seven feet deep, and was propelled by steam at the rate of ten miles an hour. She submerged only to the observation tower.

In 1858 Burgois, a Frenchman, built the Le Plongeur, 140x20x10 feet. She was constructed of half and three-eighths inch steel and was propelled by compressed air. She carried a detachable small boat in which the crew could rise to the surface in the event of accident to the larger one.

Coming down to more present times, a boat of Ericsson's with electric power now lies in New York harbor. An inventor named Holland has also constructed one.

It is said that the most effective now in use are made by Nordenfeldt in Sweden. He has built two for Russia and one for France. They are duplicates, 160 feet long, with steam power. One propeller is at the stern, with a horizontal propeller on each side to control the upward and downward movements.

The Russian government has ordered twelve torpedo boats from one Goubet, a Frenchman. Storage batteries furnish the power. They will be propelled by stern screw and horizontal vane on the sides will control the up and down movements.

It is claimed for the Detroit boat that her every movement forward, backward, up and down, will be controlled by a steam screw and that she will not dig her nose in the mud, as has happened to every boat thus far built.

KILLED WHILE HUNTING.

The Regulation Accident that Will Always Continue to Occur

Massillon, O., Nov. 27.—A quartet of boys ranging in age from 14 to 17 years went out hunting yesterday, each having a gun. They sat down on the edge of a watering trough on the side of the road, about two miles north of town to partake of their lunch.

Frank Seifer, aged 17, the oldest one in the party, finished his repast first and was standing in the middle of the highway 10 feet from his companions.

Frank Whitman, aged 14, the youngest of the four, laid his weapon at half-cock across his legs while eating, and when he got up the hammer caught on the sleeve of his coat. The gun was discharged and the entire contents were lodged in young Seifer's left temple.

He fell and expired almost instantly, being unable to speak a word to his companions. The dead boy was a cigar-maker and the only support of a widowed mother.

HOW MINNE WON THE PRIZE.

Boodle the Thing to Work Republicans with.

The Great Northwestern City Agreed to Pay Off the Committee's Gigantic Debt.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Politicians are still talking over the result of the meeting of the republican national committee. They find in it plenty of food for reflection, and are busy explaining to each other how Minneapolis was chosen, and why the various other cities were left.

New Yorkers were very scarce, ex-Senator Fassett alone remaining to discharge his duties as secretary of the committee.

The aftermath of the meeting is very interesting. Now that the choice has been made party men do not like to talk about the financial considerations, which evidently had considerable weight with the committee. Yet there is no denying, nor do well-informed men when closely pressed try to deny, the fact that Minneapolis raised $100,000 to pay off the indebtedness of the republican national committee and the expenses to be incurred by the convention, and also to give the party a nest egg to start its campaign.

The choice of Minneapolis cannot wholly be laid to its generosity, because other cities were willing to do equally as well. The one fact that stands out more boldly than any other is that the west feels the need of all the enthusiasm that can be created for the republican ticket, and the particularly weak spot or section has been discovered in the old-time republican stronghold, the northwest.

FOOT BALL.

Numerous Games Were Hotly Contested Yesterday.

Columbia, Mo., Nov. 27.—The foot ball game between the elevens of the Missouri State university and Washburn university was won by the former by a score of 34 to 0.

Denver, Col., Nov. 27.—The greatest foot ball game ever played in Colorado took place on the grounds of the Denver Athletic club, between the teams from the School of Mines at Golden and the Denver Athletic team. The Golden team was probably the better trained, but they lost to Denver by a score of 5 to 4.

Washington, Nov. 27.—The foot ball game for the championship of the District of Columbia was played at Capital park by the Columbia Athletic club and the Georgetown university teams. The Columbia team outplayed Georgetown at every point and won by a score of 22 to 4.

Dayton, O., Nov. 27.—Two thousand people witnessed the Dayton Y. M. C. A. and Otterbein university clubs play foot ball. Dayton won, ten to nothing.

Lancaster, Pa., Nov. 27.—The state foot ball championship game played here between Franklin and Marshall college and Bucknell university was won by the former by a score of 12 to 0.

Columbus, O., Nov. 27.—In the intercollegiate game between the Ohio State university and Denison university here, O. S. U. won with the score of 8 to 4.

Manhattan Field, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Yale won the game against Princeton with easy victory.

BUSINESS AT THE OLD STAND

Peixotte Reassembles the Old Congress.

The State of Siege Has Been Raised and Peace Once More Prevails in the Land of Dom Pedro.

Rio Janeiro, Nov. 27.—In a manifesto Floriano Peixotte declares that the arbitrary and dictatorial authority assumed by Da Fonseca will be abandoned.

He declares that the reign of law will be re-established. This proclamation gives universal satisfaction.

Peixotte also announces that the decree of Fonseca dissolving congress is annulled, and that the state of siege in the federal district is raised.

Congress is summoned to reassemble December 16 and resume its deliberations.

The Minister of Justice Peirira will take charge of the departments of public instruction and the interior for the present.

KILLED WHILE ON DUTY.

Distressing Accident on the B. & O. Railroad.

Newark, O., Nov. 27.—A fatal and distressing accident, causing the death of two brave Baltimore & Ohio trainmen, occurred about a mile this side of Utica, on the Lake Erie division of the road, Wednesday night.

Freight train No. 29 was going north. Engineer Samuel Eckeberry was at the throttle. Just this side of Utica the engine was cut loose to run up to flag passenger No. 16, coming south. In running back to couple to his train there was a down grade.

The engineer miscalculated the distance and while running back at a high rate of speed he ran into his train with such terrific force as to wreck several cars. The tender of the engine was thrown up, tearing the cab off and landing on top of the boiler.

The engineer had his neck broken and was killed instantly.

His fireman, Patrick Fitzpatrick, had his legs cut off and horribly mangled. He was also injured internally.

LORD LYTTON'S PLACE.

It Will Not Be Filled by Lord Dufferin.

The Able Irishman Has Other Things in View.

His Many Admirers Think He May Yet be the Viceroy of Ireland After the Passage of a Home Rule Act.

London, Nov. 27.—It is now said that there is no truth in the report that Lord Dufferin will succeed the late Earl of Lytton as British ambassador to Paris.

Had Lord Dufferin any such intention he would not have been justified in accepting the lord wardenship of the Cinque ports, which was conferred in view of the certain knowledge that on the expiration of his term in Rome early next year he will quit the diplomatic service.

He left the viceroyship of India in 1888 for Italy in order to complete the 11 years of service which is the necessary qualification for the first-class pension of £1,700, and that pension he will be in a position to claim next year.

The lord warden of the Cinque ports has little to boast of in these days in the shape of power and authority. The salary of £3,000 a year once attached to the office has long since disappeared; but the occupancy of Walmer castle, a structure dating from Henry VIII., still remains.

Here successive lord wardens have enjoyed the benefit of a pleasant seaside residence during such intervals as they could spare for the purpose.

The office, however, is a much coveted one. Lord Dufferin has in addition to Walmer castle 18,000 acres of land in Ireland. Since the time of the Marquis of Dalhousie he is the first ex-governor general of India who has been made lord warden. He has held great offices, but has not enriched himself.

In Canada, in India, at St. Petersburg, at Constantinople and in Rome he has shown himself mindful of what he regards the necessary external dignity of his official position. His career is not yet run. It is believed that his appointment as lord warden was intended to bind this brilliant statesman to the Tory party. But Lord Dufferin will arrive in England free to choose and it is not impossible that if Lord Spencer prefers an office in Whitehall, Lord Dufferin may be the first viceroy of Ireland after the passing of home rule.

He has sympathy with the Irish people. Before Irish land tenure was reformed, it was he who exclaimed in the house of lords, "What is a yearly tenancy? It is one which, having regard to its terms, no Christian man would offer and none but a madman would accept."

Lord Dufferin is an Irishman and would be acceptable as viceroy of Ireland by Parnellites, anti-Parnellites and Orangemen.

THE CARTWRIGHT CASE.

Is John Beatty Guilty of Her Murder?

Strange Circumstances That Cause the Finger of Suspicion to Point Him as the Man.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—A remarkable development has been added to the mystery surrounding the death of Actress Fanny Cartwright, whose body was found in a lonely railroad yard, where, according to the belief of many, the corpse to cause an appearance of accidental death, had been dragged after the woman had been murdered.

John Beatty, in whose company Fanny was last seen alive, has refused to admit any guilt on his part. The singular circumstance now brought to light, it is thought, may tend to unseal his lips or otherwise help to demonstrate him a murderer.

It appears that he was arrested seven years ago for almost exactly a similar crime, the killing of Amelia Olsen, a tragedy which has never been explained. Amelia, like Fanny, was exceptionally handsome and lived in the same part of the city.

The Olson girl's body was found in the middle of an unfrequented prairie, and had evidently been dragged some distance. It was evident she had fought bravely for her life and honor, and Beatty who was arrested in the crowd of morbid onlookers drawn to the place, had a face badly scratched by a woman's fingers.

He doggedly refused, as in the present case, to make explanations, but his mother came forward with a story of a quarrel between himself and his sister. The man is a teamster. He is known to have been acquainted with Amelia Olsen, and is said to have boasted of sustaining improper relations with Fanny Cartwright.

Another case in which a pretty girl met her death had a queer sequel to-day. Fred B. Smith, aged 32, residing at 288 Washington boulevard, was found dead in bed this morning. The deceased was a cousin of Carrie Smith, whose body was recently found in the lake. Since her death he has been very despondent, and it is thought he committeed suicide by taking poison.

HIS WHEAT TIED UP.

Wapakoneta, O., Nov. 27.—(Special)—Decathr Focht, a wealthy farmer six miles east of this city, became insolvent on account of having his two years' crop of wheat in Stenger & Frank's mill which made an assignment two weeks ago and cannot get it out. He made an assignment to Joseph Miller. Liabilities not known. Assets about $30,000.

SETTLING ACCOUNTS.

New York, Nov. 27.—Henry W. Dayton, a lumber dealer, has obtained an attachment in the supreme court against property in this city belonging to the McElwee Manufacturing company of Kentucky for $13,827.33

HUNDREDS MURDERED.

Another Bloody Butchery in China.

All the Christians at Kiangchow Slaughtered.

France Steps In and Protects the Belgians—Another Complication in Oriental Affairs—The Story of the Riots Repeated.

London, Nov. 27.—The Chronicle's correspondent at Tien-Tsin says:

"The outbreak in the North, officially described as a raid of Mongolian robbers, proves to be an insurrectionary movement of serious dimensions. Dispatches received to-day state that in Mongolia and some Northern districts nearer the capital the revolutionary feeling is spreading rapidly and the number of rebels is becoming alarming.

"An insurgent force, consisting of several squadrons of Mongolian cavalry, besides infantry, is reported to be advancing on Pekin, where the utmost alarm prevails. The population of a large area, actuated partly by inclination and partly by fear of the rebel soldiery, has joined the movement, together with several mandarins. Imperial troops have started to meet the rebels.

"The entire Christian population of Kiangchow was massacred with the Belgian priests."

Paris, Nov. 27.—A dispatch has been received here from Pekin which confirms the statement that well armed bands have devastated a whole district in the northern part of China, and that they have pillaged and burned the Belgian mission stations. In adition to the destruction of the missions stations at Tayou and Sanchi, where over a hundred converted natives were massacred by the bloodthirsty bands, the station at Gehol was sacked and burned.

The priest in charge of the mission, a Belgian by brth, was killed by the mob and several other Christians were also massacred.

The natives had heretofore been quiet, and there was no sign in the district that a revolt was meditated. The local authorities therefore had taken no steps to suppress any outbreak, and when the natives rose they met with no material opposition, for the officials were practically helpless. It may here be stated that the local governor in his report of the occurrence to the Pekin government does not place the blame upon the natives of the province, but attaches the responsibility for the crimes to bands of Mongolian robbers, who, he says, made a raid through the district.

Whatever the truth may be the general government has taken steps to prevent any further outrages on foreigners or native Christians in the district. Under orders from Pekin all the troops available here, immediately upon the receipt of information regarding the trouble, dispatched to the scene of the disturbances.

Action by France.

Brussels, Nov. 27.—The Belgian government has been assured by the French minister here that France will protect Belgian interests in China, and that France will also claim an indemnity, for Belgium, from China, for the recent massacre of Belgian priests in Mongolia.

Consequently the Belgian government has notified the representatives of the Chinese government that all Belgian subjects in China are under the protection of the French flag.

The action of France in this matter has caused the liveliest feeling of satisfaction in many circles here, though it is clearly seen that this step is only another bid, upon the part of France, for the good will of Belgium, in which bidding, it is an open fact that she is competing with Germany for the same object.

Indeed, it is said that Germany had decided to take the identical step that France has now taken, but that the diplomatic machinery of France worked much more quickly and easily than that of Germany.

TALLY ONE FOR SHERMAN.

Wauseon, Nov. 27.—(Special)—W. J. Sherwood, editor and proprietor Fulton County Tribune, was approached by your correspondent as follows:

"The Bee a few days since published a list of the Sherman and Foraker papers. You were in the list of the supporters of Foraker. How was that?"

"It was an error."

"Then you are for Sherman"

"Certainly."

Both of the republican papers here are for "Honest John."

THE WAR GOES ON.

Paris, Nov. 27.—The Figaros' action in opening a subscription for the archbishop of Aix has brought the wrath of the government down upon it. The Figaro, in a leading article this morning glories in the matter.

SHOT BY A BOY.

A Mother Commands Her Son to Murder.

Charles Jones Mortally Wounded in Elmira Under Circumstances Very Peculiar.

Elmira, N. Y., Nov. 27.—Charles Jones, manager of the Postal Telegraph office in this city, was probably fatally shot last night. The shooting took place about 7:30 o'clock on the porch of the residence No. 538 West Clinton street.

Jones was accustomed to call upon a young lady who lived there, but had moved. He called at the place last night and asked for the young lady.

The woman who answered his call replied: "I know you. Give it to him, Bert." Almost immediately Bert Vincent, aged 15, a school boy and son of the woman, commenced emptying a revolver into Jones' body.

Four shots were fired, one entering the man's abdomen and three his legs. Jones fell to the ground and was picked up by passers-by, who notified the police. He was removed to the Arnot Ogden hospital, where he lies in a critical condition.

Mrs. Vincent, who is a widow, and her son were arrested.

VOICE OF THE CHILDREN

The Interesting Story of the Cure of Mrs. Royal High's Baby Girl—Danger of Neglecting Catarrh in Childhood.

"In the extension of catarrh to the ears," said Dr. W. H. Copeland to the writer, "next to the ringing and buzzing noises so often described, the symptom most frequently met with by the specialist is the discharge or suppuration from the ear."

"And it is indeed," continued the doctor, "a symptom that demands prompt and skillful attention. Especially in the cases of children should the appearance of this discharge from the ear be taken as a warning sign. It is met with often in connection with the catarrhal conditions following scarlet fever, measles or diphtheria. In these diseases it should be remembered that the delicate inner lining—the mucus membrane, as well as the outer lining—the skin, is inflamed and irritable. From the throat and nasal passages, the condition becoming subacute or chronic, long after the acute symptoms have passed away, the catarrhal process extends along the eustachian tubes to the ear. Sometimes it affects the bones of the ear, causing their destruction or necrosis. A peculiar fetid odor from the discharge indicates that necrosis has set in. Sometimes the brain itself is reached, and abscesses of the brain ensue. You must remember that the middle ear is separated from the brain only by a very thin and delicate partition."

Danger in Childhood.

"The reason I say there is so much danger from suppuration of the ear in children is, that often in childhood that partition between the middle ear and the brain amounts to hardly more than a delicate membrane, and how easily the brain may be affected and death ensue in a few days' time may be readily appreciated."

STORY OF MRS. HIGH.

Mrs. Royal High, of number 1108 Newberry street, in speaking of her little three-year old daughter, said:

"For over a year, previous to last June, my little girl was so badly afflicted with catarrh that we were afraid it would eventually cause her death. Her head was in a terrible condition. The nose very sore and stopped up continually; so much so that for weeks at a time she was not able to breathe through it, and could not get to sleep until I would, by the use of salves, or vaseline, get the nostrils cleared out a little.

"Her eyes became very much affected.

Mrs. Royal High's Baby Girl.

Whenever she caught a little cold, which seemed to be nearly all the time, they would become so inflamed and painful that she could not stand the light. For days at a time I would have to keep the blinds and shutters closed—making it so dark that I know it affected my own health—for the least light would cause the poor little sufferer to cry with pain. Her appetite was very poor, and instead of growing stronger as she should at her age, she was gradually failing.

"I was persuaded to take her to Drs. Copeland and Buffett, to see if they could not help her, and now cannot feel grateful enough for what they have done, for my dear little child

IS PERFECTLY WELL.

"Very soon after placing her under treatment she began to improve. Her appetite and strength returned. The inflamation of the eyes totally disappeared and she became a happy child, with a desire for play, which she had never had before, owing to her sickly condition.

I felt afraid that her trouble would return should she catch cold, but am very thankful to say that such is not the case. It has now been four months since she has had treatment or taken medicine, and during that time, though she has taken cold once or twice, there has not been the slightest return of her old trouble."

WHAT JOHN SAYS.

Sherman Would Like to be Re-Elected Senator,

But Will Make No Foraker Scramble for the Office,

And Feels Confident That He Will Be Re-Elected.

The Brice Case Reviewed at Length.

If Foraker Wants to Steal the Seat of the Ohio Senator He Will Have to Come Down to Washington and Stand or Fall with the Issue He Has Made—Shrewd Sherman.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Senator Sherman has reached Washington. Being asked as to the outlook for the senatorial election in Ohio he said: "Being myself a candidate, I do not know that I ought to say much about the matter, but I think I understand the situation very well. From all the information I have I cannot doubt that a decisive majority of each branch of the legislature favors my return to the senate.

"I have the most positive assurances to this effect from individual members of both houses. I am free to say that personally I care very little whether I am re-elected or not. I have served the people of Ohio in Washington for 36 years. I am getting well along in years, and feel that I must soon retire from public life.

"I am willing, however, to continue in the senate another term if the people of my state, through their representatives, shall express a wish that I shall do so.

"In that sense only I am a candidate, and naturally, under the circumstances, I do not want to be defeated. It would be an inglorious ending of a long, and I think I may say faithful and not dishonorable, public career to be voted out by the legislature of Ohio.

"That such will be the result I cannot for a moment believe. I admire ex-Governor Foraker for his brilliant abilities and his stalwart republicanism. He has a perfect right to seek a seat in the senate against me or anybody else. If he is the choice of the people rather than myself I shall be perfectly contented."

Senator Sherman was asked his opinion on the question of the legal right of Calvin S. Brice to a seat in the senate and whether an issue would be made. He said: "Occupying the position that I do as one of the jury, so to speak, it is a delicate subject. Some of our good people out in Ohio wanted me to pledge myself to vote and use whatever influence I might have to oust Mr. Brice whether or no, as a duty to party.

"Of course, I did not promise to do that. No fair-minded person could expect it of me. I presume an issue will be made on the question of Mr. Brice's eligibility. It is a matter of law and fact. Evidence will be presented, and if it shall be shown that he was not at the time of his election an inhabitant of Ohio in a constitutional sense it will be the duty of the senate to so declare.

"I am unable now to say just in what form the question will come before that body. When the senate meets Mr. Brice will, no doubt, be sworn in and take his seat with the other new senators. His credentials are regular and he has a prima facie case.

The Ohio legislature can, and perhaps will, adopt a resolution declaring that Mr. Brice was ineligible. It may then proceed to elect a senator to fill the seat. That person will then appear before the senate as a contestant, and in that way the case will be presented on its merits.

"Evidence on both sides will be presented, and in due time the question will come before the senate for its decision. I confess that I do not know the facts. I have heard a good deal of talk about the matter and there has been much newspaper controversy over the question.

"It would be manifestly improper for me to express any opinion at this time. In the history of the senate there have been two precisely similar cases, that is, in which the same question was raised. Away back about the year 1800 Albert Gallatin was elected a senator from Pennsylvania. He came to this country from Switzerland and first settled in that state. He removed to Virginia, where he established a glass works. After a few years he returned to Pennsylvania, and in less than one year thereafter he was elected to the senate.

"His right to the seat was challenged on the ground that he was not an 'inhabitant' of Pennsylvania at the time of his election. A good case was made against him and he was ousted.

"Afterward he served 12 years as secretary of the treasury, longer, I believe, than any other person ever occupied that position.

"The other case was that of General Shields, who, after the late war, was elected a senator from Illinois. He was denied his seat on the ground that he was not an inhabitant of that state. If you will look at the constitution of the United States you will see that 'inhabitant' is the word used in prescribing the qualifications of a senator. That word is not synonymous as to 'citizen.'

"A man is a citizen of the United States when by age or by naturalization he has acquired a right to vote. This word 'citizen' has a general application. 'Inhabitant' has a local significance, having reference to a fixed residence. In nearly all the other states I believe a residence for a period of one year is necessary in order to become, under the law, an 'inhabitant.'

"What law and the facts will be applied to the case of Mr. Brice I have seen what purported to be an affidavit made by him before a court in New York setting forth that he was an inhabitant of that city. If this is shown to be true there would seem to be the same reason for unseating him as there was in the other two cases I have cited.

"Whether he was at the time of his election an inhabitant of Ohio or of New York is a question that the senate must determine at the proper time.

"Mr. Brice is entitled to a fair hearing. If he proves his right to the satisfaction of a majority of the senate he will hold his seat; if not, he must give place to some one else. I can only say that in my opinion the question will be fairly and justly determined upon its merits."

MEMORIES.

A tiny glove of tan chevrette;
And I will never quite forget
The girl who wore it.

Her face was fair, of classic mould;
Her eyes were laughed and now gazed sadly;
Her hair resembled burnished gold,
I loved her madly.

We met. She smiled upon me when
Enchanted at her side I tarried.
I asked her to be mine; but then
She said, "I'm married."

So ended all my dream of love;
But I will never quite forget
The girl who wore the tiny glove
Of tan chevrette.

THE RESULT OF MERIT.

When anything stands a test of fifty years among a discriminating people like the Americans, It is pretty good evidence that there is merit somewhere. The value of a medicine is best proved by its continued use from year to year by the same persons and families, as well as by a steady increasing sale. Few, if any, medicines have met with such continued success and popularity as has marked the introduction and progress of Brandreth's Pills, which, after a trial of over fifty years, are conceded to be the safest and most effective purgative and blood purifier introduced to the public.

That this is the result of merit, and that Brandreth's Pills actually perform all that is claimed for them, is conclusively proved by the fact that those who regard them with the greatest favor are those who have used them the longest.

Brandreth's Pills are sold in every drug and medicine store, either plain or sugar coated.

COSTLY LITIGATION.

Natural Gas Seems to be Synonymous with Law Suits.

A Case Filed in Chicago for a Hundred Thousand Dollars Damages—Others to Follow.

Chicago, Nov. 27.—Suit has been begun here by the Columbus Construction company against the Consumers' Gas company for $100,000, and it is said this is a claim for work done in laying pipes and damages in default of payment.

It is understood that the suit is the outgrowth of the scheme to pipe gas from the natural gas fields of Indiana.

It will be remembered that the work was stopped by the legislature of Indiana passing a law providing that gas should not be piped out of the state at a greater pressure than 300 pounds to the square inch. This would prevent piping of gas to Chicago, as it would require a greater pressure to bring it here. The constitutionality of the law is now being tested in the courts.

Mr. Yerkes, president of the company, is the president of the Economic Gas company, and also of the Chicago Construction company, which is laying the pipes of the Economic company.

The Economic company has started out to compete with what are known as the gas trust companies, the trust having been declared illegal. For some time it has been reported that the Yerkes people were to commence a legal fight against the ex-trust companies. Last summer it was said that in one action $7,000,000 would be demanded. While the present suit is not exactly on the lines along the action which was then supposed to be planned, it yet deals with somewhat the same matter.

Other suits of a closely similar nature, it is said, will follow, but the litigation will not be confined to Cooke county courts. Some of the proposed suits are scheduled for New York courts, and the battle will be waged in both cities at much the same time.

LOYAL TO HIS PARTY.

Why Bynum Withdrew from the Race.

He Wanted to Make Sure of Placing a Decided Tariff Reformer in the Chair.

Washington, Nov. 27.—(Special)—The contest for the speakership was much simplified by Mr. Bynum's withdrawal from the race. He now spends his time at Mr. Mills' headquarters, and is taking an active and aggressive interest in behalf of Mr. Mills' candidacy. The highest view of patriotism inspired Mr. Bynum to his course. He had become convinced that the contest for speakership had narrowed to rivalry between the Ben Butler wing of the democratic party and the square outright tariff reformers.

It was but natural that such an able, ambitious, influential and popular representative as Mr. Bynum should aspire to the speakership, especially as he hails from a state centrally located, doubtful in its political character and always influential in the result of a contest one way or another.

But Mr. Bynum felt that the position of the democratic party on the great question of the reform of the tariff was at stake, and when he became so convinced he hesitated not. He did not want to become an assistant to the Ben Butlerites, the Johnny McLeanites, the Charles A. Danaites, the Randallites, and the other "ites" who are trying to lead the democratic party from its natural moorings.

Mr. Bynum, in addition to being a statesman, broad in his perception and bold in his beliefs, is a genuine tariff reformer. He knew that the Butlerites were exerting themselves to make Crisp speaker, and he knew that the only way to offset the organized power, the money and corporate influences of the Butlerites was for the tariff reformers to unite firmly in behalf of Mills. Hence his withdrawal. He is now for Mills for speaker.

PALMER GETTING EXCITED

He Swore at the Banquet Yesterday

When Referring to the Confederate Flag.

A Banquet Spoiled by an Unnecessary Subject at an Inopportune Stage of the Proceedings.

New York, Nov. 27.—The Herald this morning publishes the following article, giving in part the fiery language which produced a sensation at a Brooklyn banquet:

"But, in doing honor to the people of the south, they should not confront us with that d——d stinking old rag of treason."

These were the words of Gen. Palmer, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, in the course of his remarks early yesterday morning at a banquet given in his honor, and also in honor of Gen. Charles H. Freeman, the state department commander of the G. A. R., in the Clarendon hotel, Brooklyn.

There was an outburst of applause from many of the Grand Army leaders who were present, while others smiled and whispered that the general was getting "excited."

Gen. Horatio C. King, secretary of the society of the Army of the Potomac, who was toaster, was believed to be instrumental in provoking the fiery remarks of Gen. Palmer.

After telling a humorous story, Gen. King referred to the address made by Commander-in-Chief Palmer at a reception held in the early part of the evening at the Fourteenth regiment armory.

He construed what Gen. Palmer had said at the armory as the expression of a desire for the severance of fraternal relations with southern veterans, if the confederate flag was to be used upon occasions in which union war veterans fraternized with them.

In his reply to Gen. King, Gen. Palmer said: "There is no class of men on God's earth that are half so much appreciated for their valor and gallantry, or that so reflected credit on American valor, and whom we are so willing to forgive, as the soldier of the south. But we cannot forget the loss of hundreds of millions of money and the loss of hundreds of thousands of men who are now lying in their graves because of the rebellion.

"In doing honor to the people of the south they should not confront us with that d——d stinking old rag of treason. I believe the men who were in the struggle at the front want no more fighting, but when we listen to the young scions who say the confederacy is to them an inspiration, and that they will revenge the cause of their soldiers, it is too much to bear in silence. Loyalty to the stars and stripes will ever nerve us in the cause of the union."

A general feeling of regret prevails that the confederate flag question was introduced at the banquet.

"Aren't you ever going to grow old, like the rest of us?" asked a man of an acquaintance he hadn't seen for some time.

"Well, not so long as I can purify my blood with Ayer's Sarsaparilla," was the apt reply. This man knew what he was talking about.

AN EFFECTIVE WAY OF CUTTING IRON.

It is well-known that a smooth disk of steel driven at a high rate of speed will cut into a file held to the edge of the disk. The principle does not seem to have been practically used save in an instant recently recorded, in a government armory. The ends of tempered steel ramrods, as they were in use 25 years ago, were being ground, and the material was found to be too hard to cut. Some small wheels of iron, about six inches in diameter and one inch thick, were brought into requisition. They were driven at the rate of 6,000 revolutions per minute and melted or abraded the metal away instantly, at the same time drawing the temper so that a screw thread could afterward be cut on the end of the tempered rod.—Scientific Monthly.

A GREAT REMEDY

STRENGTH OF FLEAS.

Fleas are possessd of great strength. Mouffet tells of a mechanic who made a gold chain five inches in length which a pet flea could easily drag about on any smooth surface. Bigley writes of a watchmaker on the Strand, London, who had an ivory four-wheeled chariot with a coachman on its box, all of which was drawn with ease by his trained flea, "Dick." The same man afterward made a carriage with six horses, a coachman, four persons inside, two footmen behind and a postilion on one of the horses, all drawn by a single flea.

Latriella mentions a flea which dragged a silver canon of 24 times its own weight, and showed no fear when the tiny piece was charged with gunpowder and fired off. Rene also says that he once saw three fleas drag an omnibus, a pair dragging a chariot and a single one pulling a brass cannon mounted on wheels.

The time for high priced liniments is past, you can buy Salvation Oil for only 25 cents

The consumptive's sufferings are greatly mitigated by Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. 25c.

Sanitary engineering must certainly rank high among the paying professions of the future. Mr. Cousins, who is to go out during the winter to report on the Madras drainage question, will receive something like $15,000 for his six months' work.

Are these not healthy and bright children? Their appearance does not misrepresent them; they are both healthy and bright. They are the son and daughter of Mr. J. P. Wiley, of Dorchester, Mass., and he has an interesting story to tell in regard to them. The story is as follows:

"In 1885 my wife, accompanied by my little boy, at that time 11 months old, was visiting relatives in Scranton, Penna. The little fellow was suffering untold agony cutting his teeth. My wife was told to try Dr. Hand's Teething Lotion. The effect was magical. It did not simply the child, as most remedies of this character do, simply applied the pain of the burning and aching gums. I might write a volume, had I the time, praising this remedy, and then not express my feelings or do it justice, it is simply marvellous. After her return to Boston she wanted another bottle, but I found that it was unknown in this city. I corresponded with Dr. Hand, and received in reply a sample of each of his remedies. I used them on both my children, recommended them to all my friends, and have yet to find the person who, after using the remedies, especially Teething Lotion and Colic Cure, that could not praise them. People may say, and have said to me: 'Oh, there must be something in that Teething Lotion that affects a child's brain.' In reply to this, I will say I have two children, a boy and girl, who have been treated with Teething Lotion since time of beginning to end of teething, and I challenge any person to furnish two with any clearer brains. I cheerfully recommend them to parents who love their little ones."

WOMAN'S ERA.

She Is Attracting Attention and Respect in Every Part of the World.

Victor Hugo's prophecy that this was to be the woman's era finds realization even in remote centers of old-world conservatism, says the New York Sun. When the emperor of Japan gave a new constitution to his people in '89 he paid a tribute of honor to women by placing his wife beside him in public. In the school systems of Japan equal provision is made for boys and girls.

Japanese women are interesting themselves in making opportunities for the advancement of women and occupying place as teachers, interpreters, post and telegraph operators. In Sweden the universities have been open to women for some years, and they are allowed full privileges in scholarships and degrees. Commercial colleges, postoffices, banks, railway and telegraph offices accept women as students or employes. In Denmark women are distinguishing themselves in literature and medicine.

At the University of Copenhagen several women students have honorable place in the classes. In Vienna the government granted to women the privilege of practicing medicine in Bosnia, where the subjects are Mohammedans, who do not allow their wives to be visited by men. In Bucharest a young woman has been admitted at the bar to plead at the bar. In Russia a bill has been laid before the government to reopen the courses of medicine for women at St. Petersburg. In Kharkof, where a Sunday course for the instruction of adults was opened, over 400 women attended, their ages ranging from 7 to 45 years. Russian women, too, are being recognized in literature and science.

CURRENT TOPICS.

The correspondent of the New York World at Columbus, O., is responsible for the following concerning the recent election:

From start to finish the democratic committee did not have over $25,000, contributed as follows: Assessment of candidates, $5,000; assessments of office-holders and employes of state institutions, $5,000; contributions of personal friends of Gov. Campbell in Pittsburg, Chicago and St. Louis, $5,000; contributed by democrats in Ohio in small sums, $5,000; from other sources, $5,000; total, $25,000. Out of this sum the committee paid out the following amounts: For printing, postage and telegraph service, $12,000; clerk hire, rent, etc., $4,000; speakers and traveling expenses, $5,000; contributed to counties to get out vote, $4,000; total, $25,000.

Putting the best information obtainable together, the republican campaign committee in Ohio, in conjunction with the state league of clubs, had $250,000 at its disposal, contributed as follows: Pennsylvania manufacturers, $160,000; protected interests in Ohio, $50,000; protected interests and individual contributions from all other states, $50,000; assessment of candidates, $10,000; contributed by Washington clerks, etc., $10,000; by state and federal officeholders in Ohio, including postmasters of all grades, $30,000; total, $250,000. The officials of the Deshler bank, in this city, in which the republican committee has banked for years, and whose president, Mr. Sinks, is treasurer of the republican committee, have admitted that they handled for the committee four times as much money this year than ever before. The republicans expended their campaign fund very nearly as follows: In organizing, uniforming and maintaining clubs, $50,000; in registration, $15,000; pay and expenses of speakers, $25,000; printing, postage and telegraph service, $30,000; clerk hire, rent, etc., $10,000; bringing men home to vote, $10,000; pay of workers, $10,000; contributed to the eighty-eight counties to get out the vote, $100,000; total, $250,000.

The papers of New Orleans are prophesying that their port will become the greatest shipping port of the country within the next ten years, greater even than New York. They say that the producers in the northern states west of the Ohio river and in the southern states west of the Alabama river have found out that they can ship grain, cotton and pork to Europe from New Orleans more cheaply than any other port.

Next May, sixth day, occurs the fifty-second anniversary of the postage stamp. Its biography reads as follows: Its inventor was a printer, James Chalmers of Dundee, Scotland, who died in 1853. England, fifty-two years ago, introduced the new system of preparing postage, and, according to a decree of 1854, France issued the first stamps, which were to be put before the public on May 6 of the following year, as noted above. A year later they were introduced in the United States and Switzerland, and within three years had become common in Bavaria, Belgium and France. One of the most important and valuable collections of postage stamps and other postal devices in the world is in the German Imperial Postoffice museum at Berlin.

"Jelly fish Christianity" is, in the opinion of the bishop of Liverpool, "the great danger of these times." The jelly-fish, though pretty and graceful in the sea, is no sooner cast ashore than he becomes a mere helpless lump. Jelly-fish Christianity makes an idol of Christian virtues, while it proposes to sweep away all denominational barriers. There are thousands of jelly-fish clergymen and countless jelly-fish sermons every year. Legions of jelly-fish students are turned out of the universities, and there are myriads of jelly-fish worshipers; all of which, says the bishop, is the result of an unhappy dread of dogma.

Those who take an interest in the true and tragic history of the "Lovers of Verona," whose immortable fortunes have been immortalized by Shakespeare, will, no doubt, be glad to learn some particulars respecting their tombs, especially that of Juliet. In 1888 M. Victorin Jencieres, the distinguished composer and musical critic, paid a visit to Verona, and he states that the tomb of Romeo's sweetheart, which is at the end of a garden in the old cloister of the Franciscan convent at that place, is absolutely in ruins. Above it, in a kind of a niche in the garden wall, which is of brick, is a basket full of decayed and weather-stained visiting cards. Hanging on the wall near by the niche is a wreath with a card attached bearing the name of "Mme. Talbot Shakespeare," whom M. Jouciores puts down as a descendant of the bard of Avon. On the wall to the left is a portrait of Friar Lawrence.

Romeo is buried at Mantua, and it is said that his tomb is in a much better state of preservation than that of his lady love. It is to be hoped that persons who take an interest in historic Italian monuments will see to it that the memory of these two famous lovers is forever kept green.

One of the most ingenious letter distributors, especially adapted for apartment houses and large buildings, where each floor is occupied by a different tenant, has been patented by a Swiss inventor. At the lower floor of the house there is placed a little elevator with a receptacle in which the postman places the parcels for each tenant. When a letter or package is placed in this elevator an electric circuit is closed, opening the cock of a water reservoir at the top of the building and filling a cylinder, which acts as a counterpoise and raises the elevator. At each floor there is a simple mechanism which causes the parcel for that place to be deposited in a box, and an electric bell rings to warn the person to whom the mail matter is addressed that there is something in the box. These fixed boxes are locked, so that in the absence of the owners the mail is safely held. When the elevator reaches the top of the building the cylinder is automatically emptied of its water, and the elevator returns to the ground floor.

Since the shah's return to Persia after his last visit to Europe, says a writer in the New York Sun, he has established a Vuraret-Intibaat, or ministry of the press. There are now about a dozen newspapers in Persia, the leading journals being the Akhtar and the Kanoun, printed at Constantinople and London, on account of the Persian suspicion of any statement made directly from Teheran. The chief native paper is the Iran. Every leading article begins with the words: "Thanks to the ability of the governor of the province of—, the country is prosperous and the people contented, all of them offering up prayers for his majesty."

Nearly forty pages of the new number of the Fortnightly Review are devoted to an elaborate study of the recent French military maneuvers by Sir Charles Dilke. Substantially Sir Charles has arrived at the conclusion indicated in the opening passage of his article: "Germany has this year lost that uncontested supremacy in Europe which she has enjoyed for 20 years."

DONATION DAY.

Ladies Receiving at the Day Nursery—Two Days More.

Mrs. Dr. Bacon, Mrs. Maurice Scott and Mrs. A. M. Woolson are to-day receiving donations for the Day Nursery home, at 101 Oak street, the house the use of which has been donated for a home by the Woolson Spice company.

The day is too stormy for many ladies to visit the nursery, and the number of gifts received is smaller, no doubt, than it would have been had the day been pleasant.

A valuable gift is a new $18 kitchen range, presented by Col. and Mrs. Isaac D. Smeed. Stollberg & Parks have sent in six kitchen chairs. Sisson contributes 50 yards of paper and a number of remnants of carpets, to make the rooms look cosy. From a number of ladies have been received dishes, jellies and preserves, bedding, one bed, two washstands, and other small articles. The sexton of the Central Congregational church gave a clock and three days' work.

The main floor of the house has double parlors, light and cheerful, where it is intended the children shall play and be taught; the matron's room, and the bath room. The basement floor has a dining-room, a kitchen, two pantries with lots of shelves and drawers, and a girls' room. Out of the kitchen opens the way into a cellar that has brick sides and floor, and will hold all the good things Toledo people will give for the little ones to eat.

As the storm prevented many from visiting the nursery to-day, it will be open on the same hours to-morrow and Monday, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The Day Nursery circle will meet at the same place to-morrow afternoon at 3 o'clock.

TOLEDO COMPLIMENTED.

What the Official Journal of the Knights Says.

The Journal of the Knights of Labor, published at Philadelphia, in closing its report of the proceedings of the General Assembly lately held in this city, says:

The representatives are under a debt of gratitude to the Toledo Knights, and more especially to the excellent committee of arrangements, for the hospitable treatment they received. Never were visitors treated more kindly, nor with more wholesouled friendliness. Sister Stevens, whose cheery voice and hearty manner have made her such a favorite at more than one general assembly, was untiring in her efforts to make the visit of the delegates a pleasant one. All the delegates returned home with pleasant memories of Toledo.

The local press, the Bee, the Blade and the Commercial, contained excellent reports of the convention. The Toledo papers are newspapers. They know the difference between news and gossip and never substitute padding for pith and point. Much of Toledo's prosperity is due to its press, for live men know that live newspapers and live towns are generally found together, and they act accordingly.

TOLEDO BRIDGE COMPANY.

To Build Works in East Toledo—Company to be Organized.

The Toledo Bridge company is arranging for the erection of works in East Toledo to cost $40,000 or thereabouts. The company was incorporated with a capital stock of $100,000, but was never organized. Officers and a directory will be elected about January 1.

The stock has all been subscribed and the company is now in position to go ahead with its works. No location has yet been selected, although options on three desirable sites have been secured.

Enquiry at the office in the Produce Exchange this morning revealed the fact that the work of putting up the proposed building would commence on or about March 1.

Moses Bradford Reported to be Insane.

A Well-Known Man Who Was Formerly Connected with the Toledo, Delphos & Burlington.

Wabash, Ind., Nov. 27.—Moses Bradford, at one time the wealthiest resident of Grant county, and known all over northern Ohio, is reported to be insane, and an insanity commissioner will investigate the case to-morrow.

Mr. Bradford was one of the original directors of the Toledo, Delphos & Burlington railroad, now part of the Cloverleaf line, and also was identified with the Pan Handle when that road was being constructed across Indiana. He in addition, personally secured many miles of the right of way for the Cincinnati, Wabash & Michigan.

ALASKAN REPORTS.

Condition of Affairs as Viewed at Point Barrow.

Washington, Nov. 27.—Mr. C. B. Borden, superintendent of the United States refuge station at Point Barrow, Alaska, has made a report to the treasury department in regard to the condition of affairs at the station and in the vicinity during the last fiscal year.

The report is dated August 9, and says: We have heard nothing from the ships this year, and, as it is getting late for them, and, as winter is setting in, it is very doubtful if any will arrive at this place. Ice in heavy masses and very compact extends off shore from the bar as far as the eye can reach. Snow has fallen on two occasions, and yesterday morning we had new ice nearly an inch thick. The natives say the ships cannot get here on account of ice. We have on hand 40 tons of coal and stores sufficient to carry us along comfortably, unless some disaster befalls the ships, for another year.

During the past year there were but four births at Cape Smythe village, while at the same time there were 17 deaths, including the principal native chief, whose death was due to alcoholism. Of the births, one child was born out on the ice and died before it could be brought to land. One reason for so few births is the great dread the women have of being put into a snow house during their confinement. A limited amount of food is furnished them, but all care, attention and communication are prohibited. In this condition they must remain for a certain number of days. Some freeze, some starve, and many die from other causes. No wonder the women dread the ordeal, and do all they can to avoid child-bearing.

The winter has been mild, with much pleasant weather. At one time the sea was partly frozen over but was broken up by a gale and the ice was piled high along the coast. The coldest weather was in January, when the thermometer stood 40 degrees below. When the station was built there was not another house within half a mile of it. The superintendent expresses the opinion that the refuge station, filled with rough sailors of different nationalities, is not the proper place for a native school, and he suggests that other provisions be made for the education of the young natives. He reports the wreck of the schooner Silver Wave in October of last year and the assistance rendered the crew. He also tells of a conspiracy formed against him by a gang of seamen, one of whom, named A. E. Larson, made an attempt to kill him with a club. Larson was placed in irons and taken to a place of safety.

Point Barrow station is the most northerly point on the western hemisphere inhabited all the year round by white people.

WANT BOAT ROOM.

Halifax, N. S., Nov. 27.—The withdrawal of the Atlantic mail steamers has interfered greatly with the business of this port.

At present there are seven or eight steamship cargoes awaiting shipment here and it is said that the Donaldson lines will send several boats from Glasgow to carry over their freight. Some of the goods, which ought to be going forward now, cannot be shipped before the middle of January.

THE ORIENTAL.

They say the Oriental
Is surely out of sight,
And crowds of people throng the place
From early morn till night.

Any one would think,
To see them come and go,
That there must be some attraction,
Some musicale, or show.

But ask and you will find
The facts are simply this,
Extracting teeth has changed from misery
most dread
To happiness and bliss.

They say that Dr. Bigelow
Is a God-send to the town,
And no other dentist like him
Can anywhere be found.

He has his office furnished
In a way to please the eye,
And his patients laugh and talk
And are never heard to cry.

And when you step into his parlors
So elegant and grand,
A lady meets you with a smile
And takes you by the hand,
Remarking, sweetly, have a seat,
It's thresome to stand.

So everything the Doctor does
Is with intent to please,
And drive away each doubt and fear,
And puts you at your ease.

And when the Doctor says you're next,
You step into his room,
Without a thought of pain or dread,
Or going to your doom.

And when the ugly tooth is out
You do not scream or pout,
But say, "It never hurt a bit,
I feel like I could shout."

And so the people come and go,
From early morn till night,
And have their aching teeth removed,
Without a pain or fright.

And when they meet their friends
They say, "It is a crying shame
That dentists still give gas and air,
And fail to be humane.

Why don't they paralyze the gums,
And not the lungs and heart,
And work like Doctor Bigelow,
Without a pain or smart?"

TOLEDO, OHIO, NOVEMBER 27, 1891.

"Will Cleveland have the Ohio delegation?" asks an exchange. If he wants it he will have it.

Adopting the Bee's suggestion St. Paul has decided to ask for the national democratic convention.

More and more the trend of politics is toward the tickets of 1884, Cleveland and Blaine. What a glorious democratic campaign there will be.

Senator Carlisle is in favor of ignoring the silver question, and making the tariff the great issue in 1892. Lots of good sense in that suggestion.

Auditor of State Poe says he never had an ache or pain. What a whopper. He ached to be nominated for governor and the nomination of McKinley was very painful to his ambition.

It is explained that the president has never forgiven Senator Wolcott, of Nevada, for his speech and action on the Force bill and it is not silver which has created a coldness between them.

How the good things we would turn away from are sometimes crowded upon us by a seemingly adverse fate. Germany, short of breadstuffs and hungry is learning how good are hominy and corn cakes.

Republicans charge that republican boodlers carried the convention to Minneapolis. How easy it is to cry boodle, and usually those who are so free with accusation would be the easiest to boodleize.

The whole United States has said Thanksgiving on paper and offered up its orisons over the toothsome turkey and beautiful crimson cranberry, now it will go on making senatorial and presidential candidates same as before.

The new governor of Indiana is Ira J. Chase. He is a minister of the gospel and conducted the funeral ceremonies of the late Governor Hovey yesterday, in Indianapolis. No other such instance in the history of the states is recalled.

The count to date of Ohio republican newspaper preferences gives Sherman 96 and Foraker 28. That is about the proportion the vote in the legislature will stand, unless Foraker withdraws and allows the vote to be unanimous for Sherman.

"One of the first duties of the big democratic majority in the house will be to denounce, trample upon and bury out of sight the rules of Tom Reed."—Times-Star.

Singular that a republican paper like the Cincinnati contemporary should strike the truth so squarely. Of course, Tom's work must go.

It is put down as a fatal mistake the President Harrison gave the national committee of distinguished republicans with Clarkson at their head so frosty a reception when they called at the White House. They will all turn Blaineward in consequence. He didn't even say "glad to see you" and "how's the folks."

Senator Stewart of Nevada, says "if we don't have free silver we will irritate them a mighty sight anyway." The senator is now stronger in the faith than a year ago, and says the republican free silver contingent in the senate is ready for business any time. It is very evident the republicans will be troubled as much as the democrats with the silver question.

It has developed that the selection of Minneapolis as the republican convention place is in the interest of Blaine, and it is given out semi-officially that Blaine has authorized the use of his name as a candidate. Well, why not? The man from Maine has been the administration, since Cleveland relinquished the presidency and Mr. Harrison has only been the constitutional figure-head.

Congressman Scott, of Illinois, elected from a strong republican district, tells a Washington interviewer that "nobody but Cleveland is thought of (for candidate for '92) in his state." Said Mr. Scott "he is right in most things and honest in all things; with Boies or Gray for second the ticket would be invincible." Congressman Scott voices the sentiment of a host of democrats.

The republicans in New York have an utter disregard of all constitutional requirements that do not suit their politics. The refusal to provide an enumeration of voters to ascertain the constitutional apportionment for legislative districts was a brazen violation of the constitution, and the failure to provide for holding a constitutional convention was an outrage upon the organic law. Both instances were partisan acts to hold a legislative majority which the vote of the state did not warrant. Now that the democrats have possession of both branches of the legislature the majority will hereafter rule in New York. The Mexican plan must go.

Director General Davis has named the commissioners who are to go through southern Europe and northern Africa, to awaken a big world's fair sentiment: Ex-Secretary Bayard, James Hodges of Maryland, Thomas B. Bryan and H. N. Higinbotham, of Chicago. Mr. Hodges was once speaker of the house of representatives. Vice President Bryan converses fluently in the continental languages. He will be the first one to set sail on his mission, leaving New York to-morrow. The first meet of the commission will be in Paris, from where they go into Spain, Italy and the other countries on the list. They art divided evenly, politically, and it is generally agreed that the appointments are excellent ones.

GOOD EXAMPLES TO FOLLOW.

Various counties in Virginia are seriously considering the matter of good public roads. The plan formulated is to create each magisterial district a road district, provided with a salaried roadmaster to be appointed by the governor, the county to furnish the tools and machinery and the county judge to appoint a competent engineer to survey all the roads in the county and make a map of the same, said engineer to instruct the roadmaster and oversee the work. A tax levy on each hundred dollars worth of property and a capitation tax on each male person over twenty-one years old are provisions of proposed law. The assembly will be petitioned for the legislation necessary to permit the counties to follow out their plans.

The Bee has long contended that the first great work for the material development and prosperity of the county is the betterment of the public roads. This plan is something after the model system so successful in France. Some of the best work done by our consuls in European countries is the study of their road systems and report thereon recently issued. These special reports should receive attention and study in every state and the good example of Virginia be speedily followed.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES.

The discussion of presidential possibilities occupies much space in newspapers now, and especially in eastern journals, the availability of democratic candidates is canvassed. The Boston Globe, earnestly insistent upon the nomination of Gov. Russell, cannot discover any available democratic candidates in the west. It says:

We have heard only the names of ex-Governor Gray of Indiana and Governor Boies of Iowa thus far suggested as alternatives to a New York nomination, in case the Empire State democracy fails to agree. Doubtless ex-Governor Gray and Governor Boies are strong men in their respective States, and we should suppose that either of them would be able to carry every Western State that can possibly be carried by any democratic nominee. But we do not hesitate to say that neither of them could carry Massachusetts, and we doubt if either of them could carry a single New England State.

We cannot, indeed, call to mind any western democrat, who, in the peculiar circumstances which will environ next year's contest, would be at all certain to carry enough Eastern States to insure his election. New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts are vital to democratic success in 1892. If there is a Western man, who can be put forward with confidence in his ability to carry them, his name has certainly not yet been heard. Where is he, and who is he?

Upon what lines is democracy constructed in the East that New York, New Jersey, Connecticut and Massachusetts cannot support any good western democrat for president? The western democrats have not been honored with the selection of the candidate from their numbers for fifty years, yet there has been little spirit of complaint. The west has been loyal to all the candidates, why should the east now talk differently, and inferentially threaten the defeat of a western candidate? Except Buchanan, in 1856, none of the democratic candidates since 1850 were trained statesmen. Pierce was a soldier, McClellan was a soldier, Hancock was a soldier, each nominated for supposed availability only. Greeley was—Greeley, yet the western democrats made the best possible campaign for him. Tilden was a successful reform governor; and, who knew much about Grover Cleveland outside of New York? Still, Tilden quickly stood before the country as a great strong Sage of Democracy, and Grover Cleveland is clearly the peer of any statesman that ever preceded him in American politics.

No man is authorized to say there is a dearth of great men right now, capable of becoming great presidents. They live in every section of the country. Gray and Boies, whom the Globe mentions as possibilities, undoubtedly would be available. Senator Brice, of Ohio, Senator Vilas, of Wisconsin, Senator Vest, of Missouri, Don Dickinson, of Michigan, Gov. Campbell, of Ohio, Frank Hurd, of Ohio, Senator Palmer, of Illinois, Congressman Springer, of Illinois—all these are brainy men, full of vigor, zeal, patriotism, men of character and possessed of executive ability. Senator Carlisle is a western man living just across the bridge from Cincinnati. He is as able and as experienced as any man in the country. If our Boston contemporary will look without prejudice, it will find democrats in every locality capable of leading the democratic party to an election victory and to an honorable administration of the affairs of the country. There is no occasion for a pessimistic view of the democratic situation. It is general western opinion that Grover Cleveland will be the candidate. If, however, he concludes otherwise then the west may present several candidates to the democratic convention.

New York city is helping inculcate lessons of patriotism by interesting the schools in the celebration of various anniversaries. They participated in the exercises of the 105th memorial of Evacuation day.

A poor young lawyer of Boston has just taken unto himself a bride worth fourteen millions dollars. How strange a man must feel buried all at once under an avalanche of such riches and bliss.

That Lord Lytton is dead is a regret; that "Owen Meredith" is gone is a sorrow that comes nearer the heart.

The grippe has taken a fresh grip on Daytonians and 15,000 are in dry dock for repairs.

Pity the Christian world couldn't unite and break up this wretched China business.

Mills, Crisp, McMillen and Springer; there tehy go neck and neck.

After Thanksgiving.

"What did you do on Thanksgiving?"
"Oh! I had a glorious time! I was helped three times to turkey."
"So was I."
"And twice to ice cream, and I had a quarter of a mince pie, and a lot of custard."
"I had a pumpkin pie, and custard pie, and mince and apple turnovers. Then I had nuts and raisins—"
"So did I!"
"And candy."
"So did I!"
"And the next day I had the doctor."
"So did I!"

How It Happened.

The strongest argument Minneapolis gave the republican national committee to secure the republican convention was that it is close to St. Paul, who advised people to take a little wine for their stomach's sake. Republicans never object to wine, and just now they are particularly sick at their stomachs.—St. Louis Republic.

Now We Understand.

Mr. Sweeney will engage in evangelical work.

SONGS THEY SOMETIMES SING.

Another Batch Adapted from the French and Sung with Unrivalled Success by the Gas Trustees.

President Parsons:

I can do the razzle-dazzle
On most any kind of deal:
I can knock the topmost tassel
Off of Emmick when I feel
Like bluffing; but I tell you
I ain't in it worth a cent
When Clarence Brown's amendments
Get with Dr. Jones' blent.

Trustee Jones:

No gas in the line? No gas in the line?
The rumor, I say, is unfounded.
I simply refer you to statements of mine
Regarding how gas is compounded.
We can make gas at pleasure, and never you fear,
Though Brown is a little bit leery.
The elaborate report I presented last year,
Shows that very plainly—in theory.

Trustee Brown:

You talk about your Hermann
And his thimble-rigging fake,
You tell us that John Sherman
As a trickster takes the cake,
But these fakirs aren't in it,
We can beat their duffers blind,
When it comes to building pipe lines
On nothing more than wind.

Trustee Backus:

Here I'm sitting day by day,
Giving rich contracts dead away;
It's a very exasperating plan
For an enterprising business man,
Talking pipe line 'till it seems
I'm building pipe lines in my dreams.
Thank the gods, not me nor mine
Aided in building the city line.

Trustee Greene:

We've piped half the city with nary a cent,
I don't understand it, that's all.
That we are still living we should be content,
But I don't understand it; that's all.
It's all very strange. In business, I know
It's always the custom to pay as you go,
Now we pay out nothing to no one, and so—
—Well, I don't understand it, that's all.

Manager Heston:

My hair is getting whiter
Every day, every day
And my head is growing lighter
Every day, every day.
I've no time to grow lazy,
There's Jones; well, he's a daisy,
And Parsons drives me crazy,
Every day, every day.

Superintendent O'Herron:

Unions, nuts and nipples,
Damital, damital.
Through my window the chorus ripples,
Damital, damital.
I'm driven loony fairly,
I'm hustling late and early,
And what's the use of talking, I'd rather be
Wright than Superintendent,
Damital.

THE PROPELLER GAULT

Burned at Buffalo—The Insurance on the Vessel.

The propeller John C. Gault was burned at Buffalo Wednesday evening. Mr. A. W. Colton left immediately on receipt of the news for the scene of the fire. The insurance on the boat is given as follows:

Atlantic Mutual of New York	$15,000
Michigan Fire and Marine	5,000
Marine Insurance Co., of London.	5,000
Security, of New Haven	10,000
Commercial Union, London	5,000
Detroit Fire and Marine	5,000
Aetna	5,000
St. Paul Fire and Marine	5,000
British America, of Toronto	5,000
London, of London	5,000

The Buffalo Express of yesterday gives the following particulars relative to the fire:

The propeller John C. Gault of the Wabash line was burned and sunk at the Union steamboat dock on the Buffalo river, near Michigan street, last night.

The boat arrived here from Toledo on Tuesday and discharged a cargo of wheat. She was loading a cargo of merchandise consigned to that port last evening when the fire began. The bottom of a lantern carried by one of the 15 men at work in the hold fell out and the blaze started in a lot of jute, which formed a considerable part of the goods to be shipped. The fire spread so rapidly that the men could not leave the hold through the hatchway, and they had to crawl through a scuttle to get out. No one was injured.

An alarm from box 316, turned in at 7:35 o'clock, brought several engines and the fire tug to the scene, and the work of fighting the consuming element was begun. Water was pumped into the boat until she sank. The water where she lay is but fourteen or fifteen feet deep, so her upper works are still out of water and they blazed away for several hours.

The loss is difficult to estimate. The Gault is the largest of the old Wabash line's wooden fleet, being of 1,093 tons measurement and a fine, serviceable steamer, just large enough to handle easily and carry fairly well. She came in on Tuesday with 37,000 bushels of wheat from Toledo, between which port and Buffalo she has always traded since she was built here in 1881. She was valued at $75,000. She was a sister to the Russell Sage. When burned she had aboard about 600 tons of merchandise. It was composed of jute, rope, cement, pianos, sugar and other miscellaneous goods. There were about 750 bales of jute aboard, it is said. The boat was nearly loaded and would have been ready to leave port in about two hours from the time when the fire started.

CHANGED THEIR PLEA.

Several Prisoners Conclude to Forego Trial and Save Expenses.

In criminal court this morning James Pullen entered a plea of guilty to larceny, and was sentenced to 30 days in the Toledo work house, and fined $50 and costs. He was indicted on the charge of burglary and larceny.

Frank Brown changed his plea to guilty of the charge of burglary and larceny.

J. J. O'Malley withdrew his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty to the charge of burglary and larceny on which he was indicted.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Mr. Gladstone is almost the only member of the house of commons who sits uncovered in parliament.

The grave of Moltke was covered with flowers on his birthday. The emperor sent a wreath.

There may be money in a good voice sometimes. Vocalists in church choirs sometimes get small fortunes for little work. Miss De Vere, a New York soprano, receives $5,000 a year for her vocal efforts in a fashionable church.

Emperor Wilhelm's latest project is for a grand cathedral in Berlin to cost 10,000,000 marks. It is to be for the state religion. He is also bent on establishing an "imperial cooking school."

Rosegger, nicknamed at his home "Styria on Two Legs," is described as the "Dickens of the East." He is the son of an Albanian peasant, and has written novels and things to fill 20 volumes.

Mme. Albani-Gye is described by one of her admirers as amiable, unaffected, sincere and jolly. She is very charming as well as very bright, is absolutely devoid of vanity, and is one of the few stage women who have made happy marriages.

Bishop Clark, of Rhode Island, was talking about the large toleration of Bishop Brooks on the occasion of his consecration last month. "Dr. Brooks will be a very easy bishop to work under," he said to a clergyman. "He won't expect his clergy to work as he does, or to think as he does, or to preach as he does."

Health and wealth often part company. John D. Rockfeller, who has a larger annual income than any other man in America, has been hard at work in pursuit of his lost health the last summer. He has spent four months on his farm in Ohio, and has given himself up entirely to outdoor pursuits. Arrayed in overalls and shirt sleeves, he has worked with his men plowing and planting his fields and cultivating and gathering in his crops. He has sawed wood for days and has shoveled the earth for roadways in his township.

The laureate of England does not have his best interest among the English. Perhaps the best book ever written on him is the work just published in the second edition by the Scribners of New York. The author, Henry Van Dyke, of that city, is the finest student of Tennyson who has written of the great poet. His "The Poetry of Tennyson" is dedicated as follows: "To a young woman of an old fashion who loves art not for its own sake but because it ennobles life, who reads poetry not to kill time, but to fill it with beautiful thoughts and who still believes in God and duty and immortal love."

If Mr. Florence could have chosen the time and circumstance of his farewell to the stage he could not have made them more felicitous. The curtain went down upon him for the last time not as a figure of the group of an empty farce of domestic growth or in a meretricious importation from another continent, but standing by the side of an artist who, with himself, was striving to put art above sensation and mechanism and to furnish the theater with the intellectual equipment which it must recover or perish.

MENTIONED ON THE STREETS

That the policemen are figuring on their annual ball.

That the gas trustees held no meeting last evening.

That the physicians complain that business is dull.

That the snow this morning started the hunters to the woods.

That raffles were plenty all over the city Wednesday night.

That Thanksgiving was appropriately observed in the Future Great.

That the fishermen are pulling up their nets before they are frozen in.

That the people would be satisfied with a registration every four years.

That the nightmare held high carnival last night in Toledo households.

That the supply of turkeys was not equal to the demand on Wednesday.

That the shot of the hunter was heard on the outskirts of the city all of yesterday.

That to-day seems like Monday, and most people speak of yesterday as Sunday.

That Charlie Griffin has postponed his Thanksgiving until after the legislature meets.

That Bill Kirkby, of the infirmary office, is on a hump for the state railroad commissionership.

That Charley Griffin believes he made some inroads on would-be Speaker McGrew at Cincinnati.

That Jake Romeis has not been heard from since the county convention when he so eloquently nominated Flickinger.

That there will be a lull in the public dance line until the young people recover from the past weeks' numerous parties.

That prospective delegates to the national republican convention are getting their lines out with a view to getting there.

That Alex Weber sent his son-in-law, F. C. Smith, an elegant black bear which he shot in the woods of northern Michigan.

That there is much interest in Toledo Catholic circles relative to the division of this diocese and the appointment of a bishop.

That the Ohio Yacht club and the United Commercial Travelers' entertainments to-night will be among the best of the season.

That the price of coal has an upward tendency because of the return on the part of manufactories to the use of the black diamonds.

That sneak thieves broke into the larder of the Covert house Wednesday evening and stole a flock of dressed turkeys. The prints had pie just the same.

That it would be funny if a day passed without a hold-up on the electric systems. There were several yesterday on account of accident and lack of power.

That the Forakerites claim they are getting tired of listening to John Sherman singing the first lines of that good old song, "When I've been there ten thousand years."

RAILROAD COMMISSIONERSHIP.

William Kirkby Being Pushed for the Place.

Since Governor-elect McKinley has made the announcement that he will appoint none other than a practical railroad man as commissioner of railroads, it has rather dampened the ardor of a score of politicians who were after the place. Why should Toledo not be honored with the position if the proper man can be suggested?

Within the past few weeks an effort has been made to bring to the front Mr. Wm. Kirkby and press his claims, and the gentleman alone has stood in the way. But he has at last yielded to the wishes of friends and will now enter the contest with a view to being successful.

While not of the Bee's way of thinking in politics, it can be said that since the office must be filled by a republican, no appointment which the new governor could make would give greater satisfaction than would that of Mr. Kirkby.

Probably no railroad man in the city has had a more varied experience. He has filled every position in the active service from the lowest round of the ladder to the highest, and during the 27 years of his connection with railroad interests he has always been popular with his associates. He was connected with the Wabash for a number of years, and next with the C., H. & D., and was a fellow-toiler with Mr. G. G. Hadley on the Kankakee line.

Five years since Mr. Kirkby became the city's infirmary director, and the same careful and business-like career has been shown in this office.

As an evidence of his popularity with railroad men it may be mentioned that at the late session of the Yardmasters' international convention, held in Toledo, and to which he has been a delegate from the local division for years, the constitution was suspended to permit of Mr. Kirkby's election to the position of first vice-president.

Toledoans would be gratified with his selection, and the state would secure a competent official.

UNIVERSITY EXTENSION.

Professor de Pont, of Ann Arbor, Visits Toledo and Talks With a Bee.

Professor P. R. de Pont, of Ann Arbor university, was the guest of Mr. Friedman, of the Burnett, yesterday. Speaking with a Bee on the subject of the English system of university extension he said the faculty of the Michigan university had adopted the system and were getting it into practice. He said:

"The system seems to be an excellent one. Already we have extended it to Detroit, and a professor from our institution goes there once or twice a week and delivers a lecture on some given subject."

"What steps have to be taken in order to secure the advantages?"

"In the first place it is necessary to establish a club or class in the city or town desiring it. A professor from the university attends a club meeting at least once a week, and at the end of the course, if the club member or pupil passes a satisfactory examination, then he is given a university certificate, which, while not equal to a university graduate diploma, is the next best thing."

"If such a club was organized in Toledo could the system you speak of be secured?"

"Oh, I presume so. I don't see why we could not come here as well as Detroit."

The Ann Arbor university has a membership of 2,500 this year. Toledo has not many representatives there, but what she has are good.

THANKSGIVING DAY.

It Was Generally Observed in Toledo.

The good people of Toledo yesterday observed Thanksgiving Day in a manner to suit themselves. Business was generally suspended. Services were held in nearly all of the churches in the morning, and large congregations attended. Excellent sermons were preached by the local pastors, and collections for benevolent causes were taken up. Gen. Sievin, the Ys, the Trinity Flower mission and other organizations dispensed favors to many of the needy, and endeavored as far as possible to do some good.

In a social way there were many family dinners, which it would be impossible to mention, but were none the less enjoyable to every participant.

At the public institutions, benevolent and penal, the inmates were kindly cared for by those in charge, and altogether Thanksgiving Day of 1891 will be remembered with pleasure.

THE ANTI-LOTTERY FIGHT.

Resolutions of Sympathy Adopted in Toledo—An Answer.

By a unanimous vote of union meetings in St. John's M. E. church and in the First Presbyterian church yesterday Rev. J. A. P. McGaw was authorized to send the following dispatch to the Anti-Lottery league of New Orleans:

"Many citizens of Toledo send greeting and wish for your victory."

The following answer was promptly received:

"The anti-lottery men of Louisiana return thanks for your sympathy. Country parishes responding nobly to the cause of decency and honor of the state and nation. F. C. ZACHARIE,
Chairman Cor. Committee.

THE CREW RESCUED.

INTERESTING CASE.

A Jury Trying to Find Out Whether Lumpy Jaw is Contagious.

Peoria, Ill., Nov. 27.—A very important case to the cattle interests of the west has been on trial here for the past two weeks under the title of Greenhut vs. Illinois live stock commissioners.

The case grew out of the condemning of a number of cattle affected with lumpy jaw belonging to the Distillers and Cattle Feeders company.

President Greenhut of the distillers' company brought suit to recover damages from the live stock commissioners with a view to determining whether lumpy jaw is a contagious disease or not. Much expert testimony was given by witnesses on both sides of the case, the men of practical experience generally testifying that the disease was not contagious.

When the case was given to the jury it wrestled with the question fifteen hours and then reported a disagreement, the last vote standing 7 to 4 in favor of Greenhut.

All but one man held that the disease was not contagious and three were in favor of a compromise verdict.

MASKED BALL,

And Other Good Things Enjoyed at the Asylum For the Insane.

The patients at the Toledo Asylum for Insane enjoyed their Thanksgiving yesterday. The steward, Mr. Cahill, had purchased all the necessaries for the regulation dinner, consisting of turkeys, celery, cranberries, mince pie, and the like, and at noon the 1,100 inmates sat down to a feast which was much relished.

Religious services were conducted in the chapel at 10:30, Elder J. L. McDonald of the Disciple church preaching an appropriate sermon.

It was in the evening, however, when the great event took place in the shape of a masquerade party, and over 200 couples appeared in the grand march. The costumes of officers and patients could scarcely be improved upon, and varied from the beautiful to the most ludicrous. One of the maskers, besides having an elegant make-up, showed excellent judgment in completing the same by adorning the back with a mammoth card on which were inscribed the words, "Read the Toledo Bee," an admonition which could be heeded with profit.

The large amusement hall was completely filled with the patients, who were seated on either side, while the visitors from the city were numerous. Dr. and Mrs. Tupper, Dr. Faber, Dr. Todd, Dr. Peugh, Steward Cahill, Clerk Garrett, Supervisor Slaybaugh, and in fact all the official family did everything in their power to make the occasion pleasant for all, and they succeeded admirably.

After an hour's dancing the maskers were again formed in line and passed inspection for the six prizes which were to be awarded. The committee was chosen from the invited guests, and was composed of Mrs. Wynn, Miss Aurelia Fish, Miss Carrie Beatty, Dr. C. P. Wagar, Dr. L. A. Brewer and Major Tupper. The lucky winners were announced as follows:

Finest dressed couple—Mr. Robb, Miss Barbara Strait.

Most graceful couple—Miss Shane, Miss Widner.

Best disguised couple—Miss Hughes, Miss Peck.

Most grotesque single—Con Harris, a patient.

Finest dressed single—Dan Kelly.

Best disguised single—Miss Kate Reilly.

The awards met with general approval, and a Virginia reel closed the patients' ball. From 10 until 11:30 the officers, attendants and friends had a little dance of their own, the asylum orchestra furnishing the music.

Mrs. Dr. Tupper served a dainty lunch to a few guests, which was appreciated, and at nearly midnight the company separated after a very enjoyable time. On the whole, it was a grand day for all connected with the institution.

FINE QUARTERS SECURED

In the New Bee Building by the New York Life Insurance Company.

The branch of the New York Life Insurance company in this city will remove to their elegant new offices in the Bee building December 1. This great company has had an office in Toledo but five years; and, in that time, has built up a business second to but one other company, and is growing at a rate far exceeding its rivals.

Mr. James A. Young, the present manager for northwestern Ohio, located in Toledo last April and took charge of the company's business here. Under his vigorous management the business has doubled and trebled month by month, until they have outgrown their present quarters in the Law building. Their new location will give the New York Life the best insurance offices in Toledo.

The present manager is finely educated, a practical insurance man of some six years' experience, and whether in social or business life, never forgets that he is a gentleman. The Bee was informed by the state agent of the company a few days since that they consider this one of the most successful agencies in the four states controlled by Messrs. L. C. Vanuxam & Co.

MICHIGAN CENTRAL WRECK.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 27.—The eastbound New York express on the Michigan Central ran into an open cut-off switch at this place. The engine left the track and, plunging into an embankment, turned over on its side. The engineer and fireman escaped injury by jumping. The coaches remained on the track and none of the passengers were injured.

THE SCALES ON A HAIR.

If you look at a human hair under the microscope you will find that its surface is formed of successive overlapping scales. The bristles of a hog bear much resemblance to the human hair, though their diameter is greater and the fibrille scales are much finer. Sheeps' hair has much coarser scales. It is owing to the existence of the scales that a school-boy is able by a peculiar process to tell which is the tip and which the other end of a hair, rolling it between his finger and thumb.—Washington Star.

THE NATIONAL "ZOO."

The Animals Enjoying Themselves in Winter Quarters.

Washington, Nov. 27.—(Special)—Last year there was a great ado about appropriating a large sum to purchase a tract of land for a "zoo." After the real estate men had persuaded long enough the sum was appropriated and the land bought. It was and is a beautiful tract in the northwestern portion of the city, lying among the hills, and running through it is Rock creek—a most beautiful little stream. The animals, which had been confined at the Smithsonian in very small quarters were transferred, and large and commodious cages built on the hills and in the valley best adapted to the nature of the beasts.

The bears have had the most wierd pits blasted in the rocks for them, and the two polar bears have a comfortable home, for a polar, just where a spring breaks from the rocks. The elephants have had a large house built and there they stand from day to day moving their ponderous heads to and fro in a most monotonous manner. A short time ago the younger, "Golddust," fancied the keeper was not treating him right, and after nearly blowing him of the earth with a trunk full of water nearly killed him. "Golddust" was thrown down, chained and clubbed and punched for a good hour.

The buffalo and deer came together a short time ago and it was with the greatest difficulty they could be separated. Then one of the deer was so near dead that medical aid had to be summoned.

MARRIAGES OF THE LITERARY.

The Domestic Happiness of Those Who Write Is Fairly Good.

The married life of forty-five of every fifty women who have wedded literary men is pleasant, and the fact that a man is an author enters no more into the question than whether he is an artist, sculptor or musician.

This talk about the happy domestic lives of literary families is pure rubbish. Certain writers know that the public will read what is written on the topic, and they forthwith proceed to dissect the relations of marriage and authorship. The fallacy of all this talk is best shown in the examples of the domestic relations of literary people. Take at random a dozen authors of repute, and what are the facts? Who would dare to say that the 40 years of married life of Mrs. Adeline D. T. Whitney was anything but 40 years of happiness and joy? Ask the closest friends of Eugene Field what are the pretty scenes daily enacted at the Chicago fireside of the cleverest writer in all the west. Are Elizabeth Stuart Phelps-Ward and her talented husband unhappy? Do Margaret Deland and Lorin Deland present a picture of domestic unhappiness? No man could be fonder of his wife than William Dean Howells, and surely he is a literary man! Is George William Curtis's married life a failure? Does Mrs. Burton Harrison ever have to stop and think who is in her mind the best, the most loyal, the truest of all the good men in this world? A couple newly engaged could not cast sweeter looks at each other than does Anna Katharine Green at her clever husband! Did George Parsons Lathrop ever impress those who know him as an unhappy husband, or Rose Hawthorne Lathrop as a disappointed wife But why go on? Look only at these and into the homes of Richard Henry Stoddard, Rebecca Harding Davis, Julian Hawthorne, Thomas Bailey Aldrich and scores of others, to see how idle is all this talk.—Edward Bok.

It creates a soft, smooth, clear, velvety skin, and by daily use gradually makes the complexion several shades whiter. It is a constant protection from the effects of sun and wind and prevents sunburn and freckles, and blackheads will never come while you use it. It cleanses the face far better than soap and water, nourishes and builds up the skin tissues and thus prevents the formation of wrinkles. It gives the freshness, clearness and smoothness of skin that you had when a little girl. Every lady, young or old, ought to use it, as it gives a more youthful appearance to any lady and that permanently. It contains no acid, powder or alkali and is as harmless as dew and as nourishing to the skin as dew is to the flower. Price $1.00. Ask your druggist for it.

CHEATING IN HORSE BLANKETS

Nearly every pattern of 5/A Horse Blanket is imitated in color and style. In most cases the imitation looks just as good as the genuine, but it hasn't the warp threads, and so lacks strength, and while it sells for only a little less than the genuine it isn't worth one-half as much. The fact that 5/A Horse Blankets are copied is strong evidence that they are THE STANDARD, and every buyer should see that the 5/A trade mark is sewed on the inside of the Blanket.

MONTH STONES.

He who in January to this world came
Shall for his month stone a garnet claim;
And he who in February first saw the light
Shall wear on his finger an amethyst bright;
And he who was born in March must take
The bloodstone for his birth month's sake.
Happy the maid who in April was born,
For a beautiful diamond her hand shall adorn;
And the lovely emerald, so the books say,
Shall the person wear who was born in May;
And he who in June came to this earth
Shall an agate wear for the month of his birth;
And he a ruby must supply
Who came to this world in the month of July;
And the person who in August came
Must wear the stone sardonyx by name;
And he who was born in breezy September
Shall wear the sapphire, please remember;
And the opal, of misfortune and hope the stone,
October's child will have to own;
And the beautiful topaz shall be worn
By the person who in November was born;
And he who came in December cold
Shall wear the turquois in a circle of gold.

BAD FOR ABSTRACTORS.

Movement on Foot to Adopt a New System of Recording Conveyances—The State Bar Association Investigating the Australian System—An Explicit Letter on the Subject.

The State Bar association at its last meeting held at Put-in-Bay during the summer appointed a committee to investigate the Australian registry system for the registration on recording of real estate conveyances and mortgages and report as to the advisability of adopting a resolution to present a bill to the legislature providing for the institution of this system in Ohio.

Mr. Charles Pratt, of this city, was appointed as a member of that committee. On investigation it was found that the only place in America where the system is in force is in Manitoba, Canada.

Attorney I. E. Knisely, of this city, has acquaintances among the bar of Winnipeg, and he kindly volunteered to communicate with an attorney in that place and gain all information possible by this method. In due time he received the following reply, which gives a very clear and intelligent explanation of the Australian registration system which ultimately will be adopted in Ohio:

Winnipeg, Manitoba, Nov. 14, 1891.
I. E. Knisely, Esq., Attorney-at-Law, 50 Produce Exchange, Toledo Ohio, U. S. A.:
Dear Sir:
We duly received your letter of the 5th inst., and would have answered the same ere now but we have been endeavoring to procure a copy of the Real Property Act to send you. We find that we cannot obtain a copy of the separate act and would have to send you a complete volume of the statutes for the year 1889, which contains the amended and consolidated act. If this is required we shall get one and send it to you. The price of a volume would be about $2.00.
We shall endeavor to give you the general bearing of the act and how the system is worked. The system was first introduced here in 1885 and has now been in operation for over six years. By the Real Property Act this Province is divided into certain districts, each of which is in charge of a district registrar and a number of duly qualified assistants, all of whom are lawyers and who are called examiners, besides a skilled land surveyor and draftsman and the necessary staff of clerks.
When the owner of a piece of property desires to have it brought under the system he makes application to the Land Titles office for a certificate under the Real Property Act, stating in his application what estate he owns in the land and setting out the title deeds in his possession and stating what encumbrances, if any, affect the land.
This application has to be sworn to as being correct to the best of the the applicant's knowledge and belief. At the same time he deposits a fee which is arranged upon a sliding scale proportionate to the value of the land in question. A portion of this fee is set apart for the purpose of forming an Assurance Fund of which we shall speak later on. The title is then taken up by one of the examiners who carefully examines the abstract and all the title deeds which affect the title. If it is found that there are any persons who have any claim or equity against the land the examiner issues a notice which is served upon them calling upon them within a certain number of days to file a caveat in th office against the issue of a certificate to the applicant and in default of their so doing they are forever debarred and foreclosed of any right. This notice is only issued where there are sleeping claims or equities which might affect the title but they would not, of course, be issued against a person who has a clear interest in the land. In the latter case, this party's claim would have to be got rid of before a certificate would issue to the applicant, or if it should be an encumbrance, such as a mortgage, the certificate would only issue subject to that claim and with the claim under-written upon the face of the certificate.
After the examiner has thoroughly examined the title and has approved of it, a certificate is issued to the applicant in the following form:

"Certificate of Title."

"John Doe, of....., is now seized "of an estate in fee simple (or for life) "subject to such encumbrances, liens and "interest as are notified by memorandum "underwritten (or endorsed hereon) of "that piece or parcel of land known or "described as follows:

"Here follows the description of the land.)

"In witness whereof I have hereunto "signed my name and affixed my seal, "this.....day of.....A. D.

"District Registrar." (Seal.)

"Signed in the presence of.....,
"the.....day of.....A. D."

The holder of such certificate has a title in the land described in the certificate which in the absence of fraud on the part of himself is asolute and indefeasible and is absolute evidence of title (in the absence of such fraud) in any court of law.
In case any mistake is made in the Land Titles' office in issuing a certificate to the wrong party or if any person is deprived improperly of the estate in the land, the party so deprived has to look to the Assurance Fund or the government for compensation, as provided by the act, but the holder of the certificate of title, in the absence of his own fraud, holds the land. We might mention that although many thousands parcels of land are now under this system in this Province, we know of no claim yet which has been enforced against the Assurance Fund, the examiners having been so careful in the examination of titles.
If the hoder of the certificate of title wishes to mortgage the land, he executes a mortgage in the form given in the act. This mortgage is produced at the Land Titles' office along with the certificate of title and a memorandum of the mortgage is endorsed upon the back of the certificate. The certificate is then held by the Land Titles' office on behalf of both mortgagor and mortgagee, and when the mortgage is paid off a discharge of the mortgage is entered upon the certificate and it is handed back to the owner.
If the holder of a certificate desires to transfer his land he simply executes a short form of transfer much simpler in form than the ordinary deed and produces this along with his certificate at the Land Titles' office. The old certificate is then cancelled and a new one is issued in favor of the transferree. If a mortgage is given for part of the purchase money, the mortgage is endorsed upon this new certificate and the certificate remains in the Land Titles' office.
Where a caveat is entered against the issue of certificate, the caveator has to proceed with his claim in a summary manner pointed out by the act by means of a petition in our Court of Queen's Bench, being our ordinary superior court. This petition has to be filed within thirty days and the matter disposed of under the direction of a judge with all possible speed. If the petition is not presented within thirty days the caveat lapses and the caveator is debarred of his claim.
If a party procures a certificate of title by fraud the district registrar upon the fraud being called to his attention, can himself put in a caveat against the transfer of the land which caveat may be enforced in the court and lead to a cancellation of the certificate but this cancellation can only take place where the party guilty of fraud is still the registered owner of the land and has not parted with his interest.
If he parts with his interest to an innocent holder for value the innocent holder takes an absolutely good title and if anyone is injured he must be compensated out of the Assurance Fund or by the party committing the fraud.
After six years' experience of the working of the act it has been universally pronounced a complete success. The following are some of the advantages of the system:
The owner of the land which is brought under the system always has his title ready to produce to any purchaser.
A transfer of even the most valuable land can be effected in a few moments and with the most absolute certainty to the purchaser that he is getting a good title.
The cost of transferring, mortgaging or otherwise dealing with land under the system is reduced to a minimum and it is practically as easy to deal with even the most valuable land under the system as to deal with chattels; in fact it is in most cases easier and more certain.
There is no long searching of title, furnishing of abstracts and preparation of long deeds.
In this letter we have simply outlined the system. There are of course many other provisions contained in the act, as, for instance, the mode in which mortgages may be foreclosed; how judgments may be enforced against land; and how they may be registered in the Land Titles' office so as to affect particular land and other provisions, all of which have been carefully worked out here and reduced to a system which is as nearly perfect as possible.
So desirable is the system considered in this Province that we can confidently say the value of land is in many instances considerably increased by bringing it under the system where the original title was a complicated one and vendors of land always urge as an inducement to intending purchasers, that they have a title (where such is the case) under the Real Property Act.
We might mention that the system was first introduced into Australia a number of years ago and was there called the "Torren's System," from the name of the statesman who originated the system.
We are sending you by book-post some of the forms in use, which will probably assist you in understanding the working of the system.
The forms sent are:
The application to bring the land under the act.
Notice to a party to lodge a caveat.
A form of caveat.
A transfer of land under the act; and
A mortgage of land under the act.
We shall be glad to give you any further information as regards the working of the system and if you contemplate introducing the system in your state and desire a copy of the statute we will procure it for you if you send us the price of it.
We might add that only a portion of the lands in this Province have been brought under the operation of the Real Property Act.
As soon as application is made to bring the land under the system a memorial is entered in the abstract index in our ordinary registry office stating that application has been made. This memorial is entered by the district registrar immediately upon receipt of an application.
As regards land which is not brought under the new system the titles are simply registered and dealt with in the ordinary way as before the act was passed, so that the provisions of the act only apply to lands which are brought under its operation.

Yours truly,
PERDUE & ROBINSON.

Mr. Knisely, while in Winnipeg, not long since on business, made inquiry of the system, and in conversation with a Bee said: "I learned that the system is perfect and gives general satisfaction. The advantage lies in the great safety and simplicity. The expense attending a transfer of real estate is merely nominal. There is absolutely no risk whatever in purchasing and accepting a conveyance of real estate or a mortgage on the same, and the necessity of an abstract of title, which is an essential and expensive attachment to our system, is done away with. If the Australian system had been in force last spring, there would have been no possibility of McCartney working the fraudulent deals he so successfully consummated."

PEACE ON EARTH

Is not the boon vouchsafed to the chronic, nervous invalid. Slight noises startle him. He neither sleeps soundly nor eats heartily, he is almost invaribly troubled with dyspepsia. What should he do? Begin and pursue systematically a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. With digestion fortified and food assimilated, strength returns, the nerves grow tranquil and the zest of life returns. A blessed consummation indeed, and not only effectually but pleasantly wrought by the Bitters. Biliousness, malaria, rheumatism, kidney complaint are also prevented and cured by this sovereign regulating medicine. Try it once if your nerves are out of order, and if their weakness is perpetuated by the existence of disease. A superb appetizer and promoter of sound repose.

THE OWNERS OF THE UNIVERSE.

Let us corner up the sunbeams
Lying all around our path;
Get a trust on wheat and roses.
Give the poor the thorns and chaff.
Let us find our chiefest pleasure
Hoarding bounties of to-day,
So the poor shall have to measure
And two prices have to pay.

Yes, we'll reservoir the river,
And we'll levy on the lakes,
And we'll lay a trifling toll-tax
On each poor man who partakes;
We'll brand his number on him
That he'll carry through his life;
We'll apprentice all his children,
Get a mortgage on his wife.

We will capture e'en the wind-god,
And confine him in a cave;
And then through our patent process,
We the atmosphere will save;
Thus we'll squeeze our little brother
When he tries his lungs to fill,
Put a metre on his wind-pipe
And present our little bill.

We will syndicate the starlight,
And monopolize the moon!
Claim a royalty on rest-days,
A proprietary noon;
For right of way through ocean's spray
We'll charge just what its worth;
We'll drive our stakes around the lakes,
In fact, we'll own the earth.

VAN TWILLER'S ALIBI.

The snow had been falling for several minutes in little eddying gusts and already an appreciable number of flakes were collecting on the cape of Miss Miss Dorothy Dempsey's stormcoat as she turned into Fifty-fourth street at a swinging pace.

On her head, framed by a soft halo of brown hair, in which the drops of moisture glistened here and there, a dark English walking hat had slipped coquettishly to one side.

Her cheeks were brilliant from the cutting wind, and her eyes shone with exhileration as she battled against the storm.

To insignificant Bertie Carey, advancing from the opposite direction, she appeared like a delightful vision; a delight considerably influenced, of course, by the fact that she belonged to the right set of visions, or Bertie, being so little a man, would not have looked a second time.

To walk down the avenue in his company, at an hour when all her dear 400 friends would be abroad and glancing curiously from their brougham windows or over their shoulders, was a reflection upon her taste and discrimination which she was not ready to endure.

Accordingly, before the preliminary greetings were fairly over, she was racking her brain for some way of dismissing him.

In vain she meditated a dozen clever feminine manoeuvres that, under any other circumstances or in any other locality, would have been practicable.

It was Carey himself who finally provided her with the means of escape.

"Awfully jolly, this unexpected pleasure of a stroll with you," he murmured, ignoring the gait that was rapidly reducing him to breathlessness.

"Yes, indeed," returned Dorothy with false sincerity, "only it can't be a very long one, as I intend making a call in this block." This with unblushing effrontery, although well aware that she could walk on to the North river without finding a name on her list.

"A mutual friend?" inquired Carey.

"I think not."

"This must be the house, then, since it is the last one."

Miss Dempsey gave a hasty, surreptitious glance at the window curtains, and evidently found some reassurance in their design.

"Thanks, yes. I suppose you will be at the Greys? Good afternoon."

"Oh, the Greys!" cried Carey, fired to fresh recollections. "Haven't you heard? Then, if I may, I will wait and see if your friend is in; if not, we can continue our chat."

Having gone so far is was necessary to play the farce out, and ascending the steps with a good deal of suppressed indignation, she pressed the bell. The door was promptly opened by a neat-capped maid.

"Is Dr. Robinson in?" she inquired, glibly, improvising the first name that came to her.

"I believe so, ma'am. Will you walk in?"

The room into which she was ushered gave her as a first impression a sensation of cheer and comfort and good taste. It was fitted up as half office, half library, and a fire on the hearth shed its unstable light on the two large chairs drawn up in a suggestively confidential manner, within the seductive radiance.

Dorothy had made a mental comment of all this before becoming aware that one of these inviting chairs had an occupant, who had slowly risen and was now facing her with an open curiosity which he did not take the trouble to conceal.

He was a tall, broad-shouldered, athletic young man, with a fine blonde head, and did not in the least resemble the family physician of Dorothy's infantile ailments.

"I have been expecting you," he remarked. "Won't you be seated?"

"But I called to see Dr. Robinson," explained Dorothy, fully expecting him to claim the distinction.

"I am very sorry," replied the young man, imperturbably. "I am Dr. Robinson's nephew, Neil Sawtelle; he was very uncertain about your keeping this appointment. In fact he went out hoping to meet you elsewhere, but left me to receive you if you came, and gave me entire authority to act in his stead."

"I am sure there is some mistake," she stammered. "I am not the person Dr. Robinson expects. I simply wanted to consult him about a slight cold, and will call again."

"As my uncle is no longer a practicing physician, I am sure that cannot have been your object."

"When will Dr. Robinson return?"

"In an hour or two at the most. If you prefer waiting for him, that will be even better," and he drew forward one of the easiest chairs.

"But I can't stay here two hours," cried Dorothy, now thoroughly alarmed, and continuing to stand uncompromisingly.

"Nor is there the slightest necessity of it. Perhaps if I state the case it will enable you to see that you can use the same freedom with me as with the doctor, and also how little we require of you, provided you are honest, and how unpleasant the consequences may be if you evade.

"There have been great complications in two of the banks with which my cousin is connected, and actual theft has been committed. It has been proved past doubt at what hour the latter occurred, and suspicion has fallen in the highest places.

"My cousin will be implicated in the arrest unless it can be proven to the satisfaction of those interested that he was elsewhere at the time.

"By to-morrow, or at the farthest the next day, all New York may know of it. Now, all we require is that you shall state under oath when and where you have seen him since Monday last."

"I don't know what you are talking about, and I don't wish to remain here any longer," protested Dorothy, vehemently.

"Nonsense," replied Sawtelle, almost roughly interposing himself between her and the door. "My uncle gave me a description of you before he left. The idea of denying that you know Albert Van Twiller is absurd."

At the mention of the name Dorothy gave a little gasp of horror and amazement.

"Why, of course I know him," she said, unguardedly, and then, seeing only too late that she was strengthening his mistake she sunk into the nearest chair with a pitiful wail of distress, which did not help matters.

"I don't see but that you will have to wait till the doctor comes. If I should let you go it would only mean publicity and an appearance at court and all sorts of complications, which you ought to be as anxious to avoid as we are, Miss McKinney."

"I am not Miss McKinney."

"I am dreadful sorry. I presume I have made a mess of it," he replied irrelevantly. "Perhaps we had better not try any more explanations until the doctor comes. You see if I had known that you were in the least," reddening perceptibly, "the least like what you are, I never should have attempted a conversation."

At last, to the infinite relief of both, a key sounded in the latch, and bowing politely at her averted head, Sawtelle hastened into the hall.

Already the doctor, a hale, hearty man of 50, was divesting himself of his snowy overcoat, and on catching sight of his nephew, he began to speak in a cheery, excited voice:

"Such a day, my boy! The jade caught me in spite of everything, and called on a Cunarder this noon. But that isn't the worst of it. No wonder Albert refused to say anything about her. He knew the whole thing would come out, and her testimony wouldn't be worth shinucks, for you see he has married her, married her, my dear boy, do you understand?"

As Sawtelle made no response he glanced up hastily.

"Anything wrong?"

"Oh, nothing," replied Sawtelle, in a dramatic whisper of despair, "excepting that I have kept the prettiest girl I ever saw in a state of torture for two hours. She wouldn't explain who she was at first, and seemed so agitated that I never had a doubt about its being the McKinney woman. You said she was dark."

"Black," staring eyes and big as an Amazon."

"You didn't say that. This one is small and thoroughbred to the fingertips."

"Well, well, we must see about it."

And, accompanied by his anxious nephew, the doctor bustled into the room with an apologetic good will that somewhat disarmed the hauteur that Dorothy was trying to assume.

"There has been a great mistake, my dear young lady, and one about which my nephew is deeply annoyed, but you mustn't blame him, because he was only following out my instructions, although mistaken in the person. And now if you will tell me to what I owe the honor of this visit I shall be very glad if I can retrieve in any way the discomfort you have undergone."

This brought to bay, nothing was left for Dorothy but to make a full confession.

"I am Miss Dempsey, of No. —, Fifth avenue," she began, but was unceremoniously interrupted by the doctor.

"Not Julien Dempsey's daughter? I knew he left a widow and child. Bless me, what a coincidence! We were chums, old chums at Yale, years ago—but go on, my child."

"I do know Mr. Van Twiller, but the acquaintance is only a superficial one. I saw him last at Mrs. Lyle's ball, Wednesday evening, and sat with him some time in the conservatory. I was upset because what you told me seemed so terrible."

"But Mrs. Lyle herself mentioned to me that he was not in the house 10 minutes," interposed the doctor. "I think she was miffed. She fancied him for one of her girls, and now he has thrown himself away—poor Albert!"

"Oh, I know how that happened. He told me all about it. He was going home with a Mr. Green, and after he had made his adieux, Mr. Green decided to remain, so he sat out a dance with me and finally went off without waiting for him."

"And you don't know what time that was?" inquired the doctor, eagerly.

"About quarter or half after 1, when my partner for the cotillion came up. We began to dance at about that time."

"Could you swear to it on paper?"

"Why yes, certainly."

"Then," shouted the doctor, triumphantly, "he is vindicated, whether he explains or not. This will satisfy the directors so that they will drop proceedings where he is concerned. They know already that he is not guilty. It is as plain as daylight to me now. He didn't remember the exact time he left the Lyles, and thinking he was with this woman he has married, didn't want to attract our attention to her."

"And now, if you please, I would like to go home," remarked Miss Dempsey in a pathetic tone.

"Of course, my poor child, immediately. Neil, call a carriage. I will go with you myself and see your mother; also get your signature, if you will be so kind. It will straighten the affair out wonderfully. Verily, truth is stranger than fiction."

THE BEAN WEEVIL.

One of the most annoying insect pests that is rapidly increasing in our gardens, writes a subscriber from Kansas, is the bean weevil, and "my appetite decreases in corresponding proportion when I think of the number of little maggots I would have to eat as the bean approaches maturity. But the chief difficulty I find is in saving seed. We all have certain varieties of beans, some that we may have had for years, but of which we do not know the name; hence, we cannot order from the seedman. That was just my condition. I had two kinds that I was very much attached to and have been trying to save the seed from year to year. Last winter in overhauling my seeds I found the weevils were literally eating the beans up. Many of them would have a dozen or more holes bored in them and would crush into powder under the thumb. I put them in pans and set them in the oven to drive the insects out. Out of nearly a quart of beans only thirty or forty sprouted. The point that has been agitating my mind is, could we put the seed beans in hot water when we gather the seed in the fall long enough to kill the worm without killing the life of the bean? I shall try it this fall, and also intend to immerse a few in hot grease with a view of hermetically sealing the bean, hoping thus to destroy the maggot. It is unquestionably cheaper for the average farmer to buy the most of his seed from responsible dealers; but from the fact of not knowing the name and the additional fact that the postage on beans, peas and corn makes the buying of them every year a little expensive, he will still try to save his own seed of these bulky articles. In what I have here said I have referred to pole beans. For the reason that they come earlier, the weevil does not infest our bush varieties, planted for first early use."

Bean weevils can be killed in the seed beans by sprinkling them with benzine, spirits of turpentine or bi-sulphide of carbon, and inclosing in an air-tight vessel for a few weeks in winter. Immersing in hot water, as proposed, would be very likely to destroy their vitality. If submitted to a dry heat of about 150 degrees Fah. for an hour it will destroy the grubs within and not injure the beans for planting.—American Agriculturist.

SELECTION OF SEED.

I always pick my corn for seed when I am husking, and husk it before hard freezing. I select what I think is the best. The fewer joints there are between the root and where the ear sets the earlier the corn is. I select well developed ears, well filled to the end, bright in color. I prefer yellow, but in the white varieties this rule holds good. I take a sack with me when I haul my corn in, and bring my seed to the house and put it up where it will dry and keep dry till I want to plant, if that is not for 18 months, for I always save seed for another year till I am sure of a new crop. When I shell my corn to plant I want it bright as well as the cob. I pick for deep and well developed grains. I do not remember of having ever planted my corn over on account of poor seed. I have tried the Leaming, Pride of the North, Early Butler, Golden Dent, and other new varieties, but so far have not found any variety better than the one I have.

I select the best shaped, largest, smooth and ripe potatoes of the variety, cut to the single eye. Plant two eyes to the hill, if in drills ten to fourteen inches apart. My Hebron potatoes do as well as when I first got them ten years ago. I had ten varieties of early potatoes. The Crown Jewel was the only variety that yielded more per acre. Some of them were new varieties. Some say that they would just as soon have small seed if there is no difference. Why not sow the small grains of wheat and oats? If we cannot improve by selecting the best for seed, why go to the trouble of cleaning all the small grains of wheat out of our seed? I am well satisfied that it pays to select our potatoes for seed. I believe one cause for potatoes not doing well is planting small seed that is not ripe. I prefer potatoes for seed that have not sprouted.—Correspondent in Stockman and Farmer.

HALF-BREED JOE.

"Ride?" said the colonel, "there's nothing in the world can touch an Indian for riding. He can ride on a pony's neck, on his side, on his flank—he can ride under a pony, for I have seen him do it many a time.

"And now that we are on the subject of riding. I'll tell you about a ride that a half-breed Indian made once. I never liked half-breeds before that any more than I liked Indians. I don't like half-breeds now, but I liked that critter Joe.

"Joe started off to the south on an easy lope. You could see the Indians move where they had rested like a shadow on the plain. Then out came a circle like the curve of a band of blue swallows. It spread out, widening and widening, and circled in again like a closing fan, after Joe. All the while Joe was loping over the white plain to the south. They were after him at a hot pace, and Will gnawed his moustache as he watched his half-bread getting smaller and smaller. He was riding harder now, and the pursuing Indians were between him and the train. The soldiers could see puffs of white where the Indians were sending balls after the half-breed, and then the speck of a Joe went out of sight and afterward the band, only a fine cloud of alkali dust showing where it floated over them.

"Will was an awfully reckless fellow. He didn't believe that the Indian lived who would fight face to face with a man. He used to say he would take on men and ride through a whole tribe, shooting whatever men he choose, and that they wouldn't show fight if he could keep them from closing in behind him.

"He got his chance one day. He was escorting a supply-train wagon, you know across the plains. He had about twenty infantrymen with him. A swarm of Indians came down upon him and began to blaze away. They fired like a hail-storm. He got the wagon rounded up and then tried to make the Indians come in and fight him. Not a bit of it would they have. They hung around like a smarm of bees just out of range. Every time he got the train in motion down they came again with a swoop. They were losing mules, and Will was raving, cursing mad. He couldn't make them fight him.

"So then they stayed. That night the red devils led them a terrible dance, but they stuck it out. The next day was one of those scorching, blistering days you get on the plains. The sun was like a flaming sword, and the wind that came over the bleached plain cut the skin open. There was no water to drink. The men's swollen tongues were hanging out of their mouths, and their carbines were so hot that they blistered the flesh on their hands. And all the while Will was swearing and swearing, and trying to get the devils to fight him. There was no fight in them. They had a sure thing of it waiting.

"In the afternoon it got so terrible that the men could not breathe. They began to faint under the tortering sun. Will wanted some one to come out and ride into camp for a cavalry troop. Joe was lying in the shade of a supply wagon, and he got up and led his pony over. The Indians were lying off about three miles then waiting for night, when they could come in and make things lively again with showers of rifle balls.

"This was all down in Arizona. Never been in Arizona, eh? Well, it was a nice country in those days. Your scalp was worth just about ten cents, par value. A friend of mine, Will Savrin, was a lieutenant in the —th. He picked up a half-breed, the meanest looking half-breed I ever saw. The whites of his eyes showed every time you spoke to him. I wouldn't have trusted him if my neck had been in danger and he could have saved it. Will found some of the soldiers kicking and cuffing the half-breed around camp one day. The Indian was just whining and taking it all. Will cursed the men on the spot and threw two or three of them over their heels. He took the half-breed, warmed him up and gave him something to eat. He couldn't drive the worthless devil away then, and so made a kind of man-servant of him, naming him Joe, but the Indian wasn't worth a rap for any kind of work.

"The redskins chased the half-breed Joe for nine hours. They shot him, too, but the boy took off a sash which he wore and tied himself to his pony's neck when he got so weak that he could hold on no longer. And that's the way the pony carried the boy into camp in a dead faint. There was no need to tell them what the trouble was. It was after midnight then, but in 20 minutes a cavalry troop was galloping northward. The next forenoon the men in the train could see their sabers flashing in the sunlight miles away. They came over the plain with the sound of light thunder, and the first cries the relief heard from the train were cheers that came from the burning throats and shriveled lips for the half-breed Joe.

"The cavalry brushed the redskins off the plain and sent them scurrying in the direction that the sun went. They pulled Joe together and got him on his feet again, but after he got well he was the same lazy, good-for-nothing half-breed that he had been before—absolutely fit for nothing. And yet don't you know, I really believe in spite of myself that I think better of all half-breeds on account of that boy.

"Gentlemen, will you drink to the half-breed Joe?"—New York Tribune.

CURIOSITIES ABOUT GOLD.

Gold is so very tenacious that a piece of it drawn into wire one-twentieth of an inch in diameter will sustain a weight of 500 pounds without breaking.

Its malleability is so great that a single grain may be divided into 2,000,000 parts and a cubic inch into 9,523,809,523 parts, each of which may be distinctly seen by the naked eye. A grain and a half of gold may be beaten into leaves of one inch square, which, if intersected by parallel lines drawn at right angles to each other and distance only the one-hundredth part of an inch, will produce 25,000,000 little squares, each of which may be distinctly seen without the aid of a glass!

The surface of any given quantity of gold, according to the best authorities, may be extended by the hammer 210,184 times. The thickness of the metal thus extended appears to be no more than the 560,020th of an inch! Eight ounces of this wonderful metal would gild a silver wire of sufficient length to extend entirely around the globe!

Wheat Quotations for the Day—Price Current for Produce and Other Articles.

The Markets.

London wheat market steady. Mark Lane rather easier. Quotations are 6d per quarter lower; corn firm. Liverpool—Spring wheat 1-2d lower. Other grades unchanged. Corn 3-4d lower.

Liverpool received in past six days 946,000 bu. wheat, of which 539,000 was American; and 290,000 bu. corn.

The receipts of wheat at seven principal western points for two days are 1,535,557 bu. compared with 693,479 bu. on the same two days last year.

The National Commerce.—Our table herein of exports and imports gives a flattering condition of the commerce of the country. Our exports for the year ending October 31st were $109,000,000 in excess of the imports.

Secretary Mohler, of Kansas, says that in the the eastern portion of Kansas, about one-third of state, has suffered from an extended drouth rendering it impossible in many counties to plow or prepare the ground in other ways for wheat sowings. In consequence the area sown to wheat this fall is reported at only 67.7 per cent. of last year's area. Much of the wheat has failed to germinate and all of it is in the poorest condition at this season for many years.

Russian Scarcity of Wheat.

London, Nov. 24.—The Times' Vienna correspondent telegraphs the contents of a private letter from Moscow received in Vienna. The writer of the letter makes the following statement: "The government has largely overestimated the quantity of cereals it has at disposal for famine relief, and will be compelled to buy grain in America."

St. Petersburg, Nov. 25.—The press of the city continues to denounce merchants for holding grain for a further rise in prices, and declare that the government should compel them to sell their grain at once, or that it be confiscated if held for further delivery at prices beyond the present figures, as was done in the time of the Crimean war.

Per contra.—The St. Petersburg "Official Messenger" says that the stocks of grain after the prohibition export will be sufficient for the population until the next harvest.

Take your choice of above.

The exports of wheat from eastern European ports during the past week were 2,720,000 bu, of which 2,000,000 bu were to the United Kingdom and 720,000 bu to the Continent.

The receipts of wheat for two days at seven principal western points are 842,078 bu in excess of the corresponding two days in 1890.

The export clearances for two days at four Atlantic ports have been 678,545 bu wheat and flour to an aggregate of 820,000 bu.

English markets as reported herein are steady at the decline of Wednesday for wheat and corn.

Mexican Corn Crop.

And now comes Mexico with reports of failure in her corn crop. It is presumable that a large share of the failure occurred in the corn pits of the exchanges. That thought is suggested by the suddenness of the news, and the statement of the great extent of the loss. However, if it be true, we can supply the deficiency and it will have a healthy effect on our prices.

Mr. W. E. Bear, an English authority, says: "We shall almost certainly see Russia importing wheat in the spring. If such should be the case will American wheat be required. Would not Russia buy of Persia, Turkey, Egypt, Syria, Cyprus, Asia Minor, Algeria or India."

What difference will it make whether Russia buys of America or of countries exporting wheat in competition with America? The effect on importing markets will be the same.

To English Importers.

The price of No. 2 soft wheat in Toledo to-day is 96 1-2c. The rail freight is 11 70-100 per bushel, and the ocean freight is equal to about 11c, which is, say, 22 1-2c. The quotation for red winter wheat in Liverpool to-day equals $1.25 1-2 per bushel, leaving $1.03 per bushel to pay for the wheat here, and the other expenses besides freight. This Toledo certificates No. 2 soft wheat is worth 2c to 3c over the seaboard standard and quoted in Liverpool, and it shows that our prices are low enough if Liverpool can be maintained. This grade of wheat can be purchased here and its identity preserved on board ship at seaboard. Toledo invites such business.

Markets Today.

The wheat markets on this side of the ocean opened a shade lower, but very soon became firm and prices improved to about 1-2c above the closing of Wednesday, but the markets have been unsteady within quite narrow limits, and without special significance to the fluctuations.

In corn the November future is as unsettled as ever, and in New York the longer futures are also stronger. In Chicago about steady.

The cable reports Liverpool closing 1-2d up. Futures 1-2 to 3-4d up. Corn 3-4d lower. London about steady. Paris about 1c bu lower.

In New York November wheat closed 5-8c and December 3-8c up. November corn 3c and December 3-4c up. December oats 3-8c lower.

In Chicago December wheat closed 3-8c and May 1-4c up. November corn unsettled at 73 @75c. May 1-8c up. November oats 1-2c up.

In Toledo.—There has been quite an active business in wheat futures to-day. Here as well as elsewhere dealers expected lower prices, and that the markets have been maintained was a surprise. But wheat markets are perverse and deceitful above all things. Our prices are a little higher all around. Opening trades were about at Wednesday's closing, but after numerous little fluctuations we close about 5-8c higher. On the call December sold at 96 1-4c and May at $1.03 7-8.

After the call December sold at 96 1-2c and closed at 97 1-4c. May sold at $1 03 7-8 and closed at $1 04 1-2. The usual difference between December and May is about 7 1-2c.

Cash wheat was dull and the demand light. No. 2 soft sold at 96c to 96 1-2c, a gain of 1-4c. No. 3 soft at 93 1-4c. Rejected No. 1 at 88c to 88 1-2c.

Corn. On the call May sold at 44 3-4c. After the call January at 45c. No. 3 at 58c, old. No. 4 at 44 1-2c to 45c. Rye 1-2c lower for call. No. 2 at 94c.

Clover seed was about steady and a fair amount of trading reported. Prime for cash at $5 20. December at $5 20, closing a fraction lower. February at $5 30; No. 2 at $5 00 to $5 05.

A WIFE AND MOTHER SPEAKS

Words of Value to All Parents and Families.

A Family Safeguard From Coughs, Colds, Catarrh, Influenza, La Grippe, and All Diseases of Winter.

A STITCH IN TIME SAVES NINE.

Mrs. J. W. Reynolds, of Elkton, box 46, Columbiana county, O., says she has suffered with congestion of the lungs, catarrh in the head, and was troubled with a bad cough. She had tried a number of physicians, but they all failed to cure her. She was induced to try Pe-ru-na, and immediately a marked change took place. After using Pe-ru-na her cough ceased, and in a short time her other ailments were cured. She is now completely restored to health, and gives all the credit to Pe-ru-na.

At least two people out of three some time during the winter months have a cold more or less severe. Very few indeed escape entirely. Although a cold is not often directly fatal, yet it is the most productive source of incurable diseases that is known to the medical profession. At least one-third of the deaths in the United States are easily traced to the effects of cold. Croup, bronchitis, asthma, catarrh, consumption, pleurisy, diphtheria, pneumonia, rheumatism, acute heart disease, Bright's disease of the kidneys, neuralgia and paralysis, are, in a thousand instances, directly traceable to a cold. A cold is the most frequent, the most dangerous and the most neglected ill of life.

The treatment of colds ought to begin with the appearance if the first symptoms. Many years' observation has convinced thoughtful people that hot drops, quinine, hot slings, Dover powders, ginger drinks, and a host of similar remedies, are not only unreliable, but often injurious, as they all alike have the effect of causing unnatural perspiration, which is liable to be checked by the slightest exposure, and the cold increased thereby. Since a cold has the invariable effect of producing congestion of some mucous surface, the remedy for it ought to operate there also. The compound Pe-ru-na was devised with especial reference to this effect. It operates by increasing the circulation in the mucous membranes of the whole body, and, no matter where the cold may have settled—whether in the head, throat, lungs, kidneys or urinary organs—Pe-ru-na will immediately relieve the congested membrane and stop the discharge.

Whether the catarrh has settled in the head and produced catarrh or deafness, or settled in the throat and produced enlarged tonsils or hoarseness, or settled in the bronchial tubes and lungs, producing cough or asthma, or settled in the kidneys or bladder, producing Bright's disease or gravel, Pe-ru-na is the remedy to be invariably relied upon for the treatment of these cases.

Thousands of cases of colds in all stages and phases are treated every year with Pe-ru-na, and the combined experience and testimony is, that Pe-ru-na is the most speedy and permanent cure yet discovered. Pe-ru-na is equally valuable to prevent, to cure, and to entirely remove the effects of a cold. No family, especially at this season of the year, ought to be without this excellent preventive and cure for that most insidious, ever-present, disease-breeding malady called a cold.

For treatise on catarrh, coughs, colds, consumption, and all climatic diseases of winter, send for Family Physician No. 2. Address Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, O.

ENTERTAINMENTS.

The Attractions Seen and to be Seen at Wheeler's and the People's.

A large and fashionable audience greeted Jane at Wheeler's Wednesday evening.

The production is a farcical comedy of the highest order, and is as dainty and toothsome to the theater-going public as bon-bons to a child. The story is pure and simple, devoid of the slightest tinge of vulgarity, and is replete with sparkling wit, rich humor and complicated situations that create perfect storms of mirth.

The cast is perfect, and Jane was rendered Wednesday evening in a manner that won universal favor, and the attraction will receive a hearty welcome on a return date.

The Clemenceau Case.

The Clemenceau Case, the play which has been so much talked about ever since the authorities of Boston decided that the studio scene was not within proper bounds for presentation upon the stage, is a play which does not depend upon a single scene or incident for its dramatic success and interest. The studio scene is only one in a series, and in deference to the best critical opinion has been very cleverly modified, so that the dramatic value of the passage is in no means lessened, while there is nothing to offend the most particular.

Toledo audiences have had several opportunities to criticise this drama, and the big sale for Wheeler's to-morrow night is evidence that the criticisms have been favorable.

The Still Alarm.

The Still Alarm, written by Joseph Arthur, author of Blue Jeans, is undoubtedly the most popular attraction that visits this city. The best evidence of its popularity is that each visit finds it even more successful in a financial point of view. The reason for this is that the play deals with topics and events of everyday life, and like Dickens' novels, portrays characters that are familiar to all. There is nothing in the every day life of a great metropolis that will create more stir and bustle on the streets than an alarm of fire. All stop and listen to the clang of the bell, count the strokes and then watch with interest the noble animals with distended nostrils dashing along the streets, whirling the highly burnished engines, glistening in the sun or gleaming at night with the lights of the lanterns along the streets, the driver guiding the snorting steeds in and out of the crowded thoroghfares with skill and dexterity. When a scene of this kind is presented on the stage with such fidelity to nature as is shown in this famous fire station act in The Still Alarm, it is little wonder that audiences go wild with enthusiasm over what is perhaps the most realistic and best managed scene of modern life that the stage has produced in these days of stirring accuracy.

Rhea at Wheeler's.

There is no plot worth speaking of in La Czarina. An illicit lover, complicated with the social intrigues and political schemes of a court, gives the charming Rhea an opportunity of creating a character at once weak and strong, not altogether reliable. As a Catherine Rhea is even stronger than in Josephine, and shows a marked improvement in handling of the more critical situations. It is an old, old story. The woman triumphs over the queen and wife and love is victorious over pride, ambition and power. Rhea's French lisp, which she does not somehow seemed to have overcome, lends an additional charm to the simplicity of Catherine. William Harris as Peter the Great while not an ideal czar gave an excellent rendering of his part. Prince Menzikoff found an able interpreter in Erroll Dunbar, and the simple and gentle Olga was delightfully personated by Miss Una Abell. Lauren Rees, as Count Sapiedie, was good, as indeed were all the others in their respective parts. Wheeler's was crowded and the audience was more than pleased. La Czarina will be repeated to-night, and there will undoubtedly be another packed house.

Primrose & West's Minstrels.

Primrose & West's minstrels, with the best comedians, the best specialists, the best vocalists, the best dancers, the best musicians and positively the greatest number of celebrated artists ever in one organization will appear at the Wheeler's, December 3.

AT THE O. Y. C.

This evening the Ohio Yacht club will keep open house, and an evening of rare enjoyment may be expected. Invitations extended have been numerous. An entertainment will be given in the theater, the curtain rising at 8:30. In the olio are the popular fun makers that have done service within the precincts "many a time." Dancing will be indulged in from 11 to 1, and refreshments are not to be forgotten in the meantime. The O. Y. C. boys are elegant entertainers, as has been shown on several occasions in the past, and to-night's reception will not be an exception.

The bill of fare at the Burnett house yesterday has seldom if ever been equaled. Mine host Friedman is fast becoming a popular Toledo landlord.

Col. Frank Cheney was the first one to enjoy the fine sleighing on Madison street to-day. His fine team and cutter spoke plainly of the merits of Hall's catarrh cure.

What is said to be the largest block of stone ever hoisted in Toledo was placed over the main entrance of the new Walbridge building yesterday. It weighed 14,000 pounds and is a beauty. Contractor Neukom got there as usual.

The Lucas county Horticultural society holds its regular December meeting at Hon. H. Kellogg's on next Wednesday, Dec. 2. All are cordially invited, and a large attendance is desired.

The German Labor Benevolent Society gave their annual ball last evening at Phoenix hall. Dancing and refreshments were enjoyed during the evening, and the affair was a social and financial success.

Allan Brown, an old citizen of Toledo, died at Chicago this morning of catarrh of the stomach. The deceased was engaged in business in Toledo for many years, and was well known. He is a brother of Superintendent Luce Brown, of the workhouse.

Manager Brady stated to a Bee to-day he anticipates the largest business of the season next week during the presentation of the "Still Alarm." He reasons thus because the advance sale of seats has started off with a rush, and because of the first presentation of the piece in the city.

Druid hall was crowded last night by the Improved Order of Red Men, Maumee Tribe, No. 47, and their friends, who made merry and indulged in a general good time. The committee on arrangements consisted of Otto Schrader, John Timon, Wm. Vick, Louis Greiner and Geo. Murzinger.

Fire was discovered in a barn at the rear of number 127 Broadway at 10 o'clock this morning. The fire department responded promptly to an alarm, and the blaze was extinguished at a loss of about $250. An axle broke and disabled the hook and ladder truck of engine house 3, while enroute.

Company C, 16th regiment, O. N. G., were "in it," and with their usual tact, gave 400 couples the pleasure of "tripping the light fantastic" to the strains of Leon's complete orchestra. Caterer Pilock did his duty in a "refreshing" manner, and it was early in the morning when the pleasure-seekers sought their homes.

A Thanksgiving reception was given by the pupils of all classes of Prof. Williams' dancing academy, as Walbridge hall, yesterday afternoon from 2:30 until 5 p. m. This was a very pleasant occasion and was enjoyed by the large number who attended. The formal opening of Prof. Williams' dancing academy will occur on New Year's day.

The Toledo Railroad Clerks' association have had printed one of the neatest designs for an admission ticket to their party at Pythian castle next Thursday night. It is in the shape of way bill, and in appropriate places, has this information: "Dec. 3, 4 1-2 solid hours of fun, charges 75 cents, to be delivered at Pythian castle, promptly at 9 o'clock."

A large force of men and teams are at work grading the L. G. Baumgardner property, corner Monroe and Eleventh streets, where the old Whitaker homestead has been recently torn down. It will be a great improvement to that locality to see the old hill gone, but it is understood that Mr. Baumgardner does not intend improving the property at present.

The third junior Y. M. C. A. star course entertainment will be given in Association hall to-night, which will be participated in by Mrs. Elizabeth Mansfield, Irving, reader, the Banjo club and Miss May Russell, vocal soloist. It is the privilege of each member to bring a friend and parents. All members should be present.

Rev. E. E. Williams will address the young men in Association hall, corner Summit and Orange streets, Sunday, at 4 p. m. A male quartet will furnish music. All young men are invited to attend this gospel song service, for men only. The meeting for boys at 3 o'clock, in the same place, will be addressed by Rev. A. J. Fish, rector St. John's M. E. church.

THE ROYAL ARCANUM.

Toledo council of the Royal Arcanum was visited on Wednesday evening by Grand Regent J. J. McKinstry, of Cleveland, Thomas D. Shepherd, of Norwalk, and other state officers. This is the first time the local council has been visited by grand officers, hence the members appreciated the call. After the meeting about sixty members repaired to Meinert's, where an elegant spread was served, and at which several happy speeches were made. Toledo council is fast becoming the banner one of the state, and boasts of securing the largest gain during the past year. Twelve applications were received on Wednesday evening, and many others are on the way. The council includes some of Toledo's best known and substantial citizens, and steady growth may therefore be expected.

CARD OF THANKS.

To the very generous friends of the worthy and needy poor, I hereby tender not only my own thanks, but those of the one hundred and twenty-five families who were provided yesterday with dinner, in whole or in very liberal part, by your contributions, that otherwise would have had but a very scant one.

May it be said of you, by-and-by, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these ye have done it unto Me," is my prayer. P. S. SLEVIN,
City Missionary.

UPSET THE WAGON.

A Motor Car and Tank Wagon Collide.

At 1 o'clock this morning a Robison electric car collided with an oil tank wagon belonging to the Crystal Oil Refining company at the intersection of Summit and Monroe streets. The wagon was overturned and damaged to some extent. It was full of oil, and a great deal was lost before the wagon could be righted. No one was injured.

SNOW OVERCOMES ELECTRICITY.

The first snow of the season to-day, and to celebrate the event, the electric cars laid off for a holiday. They have been running every once in a while all day long, but the regularity could not be depended upon. At one time this morning about a dozen motors were laid out between Superior and Summit streets.

THE BOYS ARE TOO FLY.

Conductors of East Side cars, and those on some other lines are very much annoyed by a smart aleck trick some of the Distirct messenger boys are playing. The boys run to meet the car, or run after it whistling, and when the car has been stopped do not take it. This trick is played a dozen times a day by some of the boys, who seem to think it is very funny. When a few of them have been reported at the district headquaretrs, they will wonder where the fun came in.

BISHOP ATWILL TO-NIGHT.

Our esteemed Bishop Atwill is in Toledo again, the guest of Mrs. Samuel Young, of Madison street. He arrived yesterday, in time to take part in the Thanksgiving services at Trinity church, and will remain until Saturday evening. To-night he lectures at Trinity, on the subject of missions. The announcement will gratify many Toledoans, and a good attendance is anticipated.

The name of John B. Rae is prominently mentioned all over the state as the successor of John McBride as labor commissioner. Mr. Rae would be a first-class man for that position, as he is probably better known in labor circles than any other man in the state. Mr. Rae is now general president of the United Mine Workers of Ohio, a standing delegate to the general conventions of the American Federation of Labor and Knights of Labor. His appointment would give general satisfaction to all parties.—Toledo Labor Record.

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD.

The custom, as ancient as Homer, of an author giving readings from his own works, will be happily illustrated by the appearance of the poet Arnold in our city one week from to-morrow night. THREE EXCELLENT DOCTORS.

Some of the eminent physicians of Paris were assembled about the death-bed of Dumoulin, the most celebrated doctor of his day.

"Gentlemen, I shall leave behind me three excellent doctors to supply my absence." Being pressed to name them, as each man expected to be included in the trio, he said, "Water, Exercise and Diet."

HAD A BLOODY BATTLE.

Wapakoneta, O., Nov. 27.—(Special)—Yesterday two neighbors, Joseph Wolph and John Miller, fought with ax and hatchet about a fence which divides their properties. They are both powerful men, and death would have resulted to each of them had it not been for the timely interference of outside parties. They both present a terrible and bloody aspect, and are in a precarious condition. They used their weapons to very good advantage.

Their First Born.

Young Father—I am amazed, my dear, that you should think of giving the baby paregoric. Don't you know that paregoric is opium, and opium stunts the growth, enfeebles the constitution, weakens the brain, destroys the nerves, and produces rickets, marasmus, consumption, and everything else that is dreadful?

Young mother—Horrors! No, I never heard a word of it. I won't give the darling a drop—no, indeedy. But something must be done to stop its crying. Can't you carry him a while?

Young father (after an hour's walk up and down the room)—My dear, where is that bottle of paregoric?—New York Weekly.
